MASTERS BALK STRIKE PEACE

"DESERTED."

Team abandoned in the street by non-union driver, one of the frequent sights at the noon hour. This photograph shows a briderless and driverless horse grazing on the cobbles of a Boston thoroughfare.

Injunction hearing in the teamsters' strike, halted yesterday in an effort to secure a settlement, was resumed to-day.

HARRIMAN'S GRAB BARED IN REPORT

Interstate Commission Calls for Prosecution of Railroad King.

NEW YORK, May 15.—An extract of the Interstate Commerce Commission findings on its investigation of the Harriman Railroad combination, is published to-day in a New York paper which states that the report is by far the most sensational ever put out by the commission.

It is stated that the commission has found that railroad competition has been choked off entirely in an area equal to one-third of the United States, and that in this area Harriman is absolute master; that Harriman's contract with the Rock Island, Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe, the Illinois Central and the San Pedro roads are infringements of the anti-trust acts and recommends that the Attorney-General proceed against them; that the purchase of the shares of one railroad by another was a bad practice that ought to be stopped by law; that there should be new and effective laws to prevent inflation of securities like that in the Alton organization; that the profits of the great railroads of the Far West are being used to buy stock and control systems in the East, instead of building more roads for the development of the West.

Score Stock-Watering.

Attorneys Frank B. Kellogg and Charles A. Severance, who wrote the report for the commission, find that the Harriman re-organization of the Alton was "one of the most remarkable cases of manipulation and stock watering ever known," and they demand that laws be passed which will stop such practice in future.

The report concludes that Harriman now has absolute control of the Illinois Central and that he is so powerful in the Santa Fe that he has been able to stop all competition between it and his roads.

It is declared that the combination of the Union and Southern Pacific systems has been so powerful as not only to suppress all competition, but to prevent the building of the San Pedro road from Salt Lake to Los Angeles as an independent line. The independent railroad, in the great empire dominated by Harriman, is found to be impossible.

To Institute Big Suits.

The report of U. S. commission will be sent to Attorney General Bonaparte in a few days.

In view of the well-known attitude of the administration toward the Harriman combination, no doubt is entertained that a series of great suits will be instituted in the immediate future to dissolve the different agreements, contracts and stock-holding arrangements by which the Union Pacific holds control of many of its properties.

Try Goldie Neill as Husband's Slayer
GIRL FIGHTS FOR LIFE

Declares She Will Tell Jury of Tragedy, Truth of Which Only She Knows.

By Charles Somerville.

BRIDGEPORT, May 15.—Goldie Neill prepared to go into court to-day to make the great battle of her life against death on the scaffold. "I will lead the fight myself," she declared, as she consulted with her attorney.

"I will go on the stand and tell all that happened in that room that day. I will tell how Joe Neill came to his death."

Only she knows—she and her Maker—and it will be for the jury to listen and then say whether or not the story she tells, with her life hanging in the balance, is not a truthful explanation of the mysterious death of the big man.

This is what the lawyer of the artist's model who is soon to stand in peril of the hangman has announced. Judge Foster is the woman's counsel, and he says that Goldie Neill is ready, bravely, steadily and clearly, with her own lips, to give the solution of the tragedy of the tiny wound—the queer, uncanny ending of a huge, strong man's life with a slender nail file.

WAS NEILL A SUICIDE?

Two solutions of this curious death present themselves as being the only ones that can possibly be looked for. They make terrible pictures—both of them. But other explanations of this murder do not seem possible, to say nothing of being improbable.

One is that Joe Neill killed himself. The second is that Goldie Neill killed the athlete in defence of her own life. The only other solution presents a picture most horrible of all—that Goldie Neill stole upon the giant as he slept and deliberately and fiendishly destroyed his life.

For the first to be accepted, it must be shown that Neill was on the verge of nervous collapse after weeks of debauchery. It must be indicated that the man suffered fits of semi-dilirium and of deep melancholy. There will be evidence forthcoming, it has been declared, to show that he had contemplated suicide, and had even gone so far as to ask a waiting woman to purchase poison for him.

COULD HAVE SLAIN SELF.

Neill, securing this, and his wife watching that he should not secure poison or become in any way possessed of a deadly weapon, he saw among her toilet articles on the bureau the slender glistening steel nail file and his weakened mind conceived the frenzied notion of jabbing the little weapon through his eye and into his brain. He might easily have strode to the bureau and with his back toward his wife indicted upon himself the wound without her observing just what he had done. As he fell the sling of his arms might have hurled the weapon amid the folds of the umbrella standing in the corner, where it was found by the police searchers.

Charges She Was Led Into Bigamous Marriage With the Athletic Victim.

PRESIDENT MELLEN ON STAND IN MERGER SUIT

President Charles S. Mellen of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company is the principal witness to-day in the hearing in the Probate Court in the case of the Commonwealth of Massachusetts against the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad Company to restrain the railroad from buying and controlling street railway lines within the confines of the Commonwealth.

Attorney-General Dana Malone appears for the Commonwealth. He is assisted by Assistant-Attorney-General F. B. Greenhalge. Attorney Josiah H. Benton appeared for the railroad.

Heads Many Trolley Lines.

On the witness stand, President Mellen, who was seated, testified that he was president of the New Haven Railroad and president of the Springfield Street Railway Company, the Berkshire Street Railway Company, the Worcester Consolidated Street Railway Company, the Worcester & Southbridge Street Railway Company, the Massachusetts Street Railway Company, the Worcester & Blackstone Valley Street Railway Company and the New England Securities Company, the concern through which the New Haven Railroad has acquired and holds the different trolley lines in the Commonwealth in defiance of the laws.

The charging on the case of the Attorney General to prevent the railroads holding the trolley lines which has been going on for several weeks and in the course of which more than 700 pages of typewritten testimony has been taken, is before Master Winfield S. Slocum of Newton.

The president of the New Haven railroad came into the court room precisely at 11 o'clock, the time set for the continued hearing to-day. He was faultlessly clad in a black suit, white tie, white shirt, turn-down collar and patent leather shoes.

As he sat in the chair in the witness stand he leaned his arms on the railing in front of him and capped it with his fingers as he answered easily and with seemingly entire unconcern the questions put to him by Attorney-General Malone.

85,000 MILL HANDS RAISED 10 PER CENT.

Practically Every Cotton Plant in Rhode Island Follows Lead of Fall River.

According to advices from the leading cotton mill centres of southern New England, fully 85,500 operatives will have their wages advanced about 10 per cent. beginning Monday, May 27.

The latest upward movement in mill wages originated in Fall River, where a new agreement recently announced provides for a higher schedule on that date. About 30,000 hands are employed in the factories there.

Nearly 25,000 operatives in New Bedford will also receive a 10 per cent. advance, announcement of which was made yesterday.

In Providence mill circles it is stated that practically every cotton mill in Rhode Island will increase wages, probably about 10 per cent., May 27 or a week later. The action of the mill owners of that State will affect about 25,000 employes in Rhode Island, eastern Connecticut and in half a dozen Massachusetts villages, where the factories are controlled by Providence mill interests.

It is also expected that Blackstone Valley villages in this State, East Taunton, Amesbury and Fieldale, will shortly post notices of the raise.

It is not known in what action will be taken by the plants in northern New England. The same question has not been considered in Boston mill offices, which control practically all the mills in New Hampshire, Maine, Lowell, Lawrence, Palmer, Ware, Chicopee and Holyoke.

BREAK ON CHARDON STREET

Thieves entered the building at No. 15 Chardon street last evening, and after ransacking two offices got away with an overcoat, a gold mounted fountain pen and a pair of gold rimmed eyeglasses.

Effort to Secure Settlement of Teamsters' Difficulty Defeated Through the Refusal of Employers to Agree—Injunction Hearing Still Goes On.

The employing teamsters have rejected any plan of settlement offered in the conference between attorneys for both sides. The conference was held at the request of Master James B. Colt, who believes the strike can be settled.

Failing to receive a report from Attorney Feeley that the master teamsters had agreed to arbitrate their differences with the striking drivers, Master Colt, who is taking testimony on the merits of the complaints of the employers in the injunction proceedings, ordered the hearing to go on to-day.

HEARING IS RESUMED.

It was expected that, in event of the owners coming to an agreement among themselves, Mr. Feeley would make announcement to Master Colt and have the injunction hearing discontinued. Instead, however, Mr. Feeley came into the supreme court to-day fifteen minutes after the hearing had been opened and called his first witness.

ATTORNEYS SHOW BITTERNESS.

The hearing was marked by considerable bitterness between the attorneys. Once when Attorney Mansfield had asked a witness where he lived, Mr. Feeley made a serious objection. He started the court by saying that he was afraid the attorney for the union might give the address to his clients for their own use. He feared assaults, he said, if addresses of witnesses were revealed.

Master Colt, however, directed the witness to write the name on a piece of paper and hand it to him.

Time and time again Mr. Feeley announced that he would object to the ruling of the master on testimony. It is believed that he has about forty objections to make during the hearing, that has not yet lasted two days.

By the failure of the Master Teamsters to agree, the injunction proceedings will be carried on to the end by the union. Only the intervention of the State Board of Arbitration and the offer of Civic Federation of New England stands in the way of the strike continuing.

EMPLOYERS BLOCK PEACE.

According to the attorneys for the union, the strike could be easily settled, were it not for the opposition of certain men in the employers' association. They declare that the master teamsters are willing to arbitrate their differences, but that they are held back by the officials of the employers' association. It was one of these officials who at the beginning of the strike sent out word to the team owners not to let the "arbitration board hurt it."

Against the employers' association, no matter what the outcome of the strike, there is to be directed a campaign in which organized labor throughout the State will take part. It is for that purpose that the Boston Central Labor Union and the State branch, A. F. of L., are work together and financing the teamsters' strike.

OFFER FEDERATION'S AID.

It is expected at the office of the Civic Federation of New England to-day that there will be replies received from the letters which were sent out yesterday to the master teamsters and the representatives of the union, offering the services of the federation toward a settlement of the strike. The letters were sent out by Hayes Robbins, the secretary. Louis Brandeis, the lawyer, is at the head of the branch in New England.

It was suggested by the Federation that each side get together and frankly discuss their differences, thereby making possible an adjustment of the difficulty.

The Injunction hearing John F. Perkins said that he lived in Brookline, was called to say that he had applied at the stable of Fifield, Richardson & Co. for a position to-day and had been driven away by a crowd. He did not recognize any union buttons in the crowd.

EASY TO BE BLOCKADED.

A button used by drivers for a milk concern was shown to John Tierney, a strike-breaker, who claimed to have been assaulted. It looks very much like a union teamsters' button. Tierney admitted that he couldn't tell the difference if he were twenty feet away.

James J. King, who came from New York and said he had driven a team for five years, called as a witness by Mr. Feeley. Frankly admitted that it was very easy for a teamster to get blockaded in Boston.

"The system here is very poor," King said. "In New York, where the streets are wider, there is a traffic squad that keeps the teams moving in a regular system."

King said he had been attacked, once at the corner of Broadway and A streets on a Sunday.

"Did the men who assault you wear union buttons?" asked Attorney Mansfield. "No sir, they did not," King answered.

He admitted that he was hired by Waddell & Mann in New York, that he didn't sign any contract and that he didn't know who paid him.

ASK 1,800 UNIONS TO BACK STRIKE OF TEAMSTERS

At a mass meeting of the Massachusetts State Branch of the American Federation of Labor and the Central Labor Union, held in Wells Memorial Hall last night, both organizations voted to stand behind the striking teamsters with moral support and financial aid to the full extent of the funds in their treasuries. These bodies have taken up the fight for union labor against the "open shop organization" and, even if the teamsters' strike is settled at an early date, the fight for union principles will continue, according to the union leaders.

At last night's meeting it was decided to send circulars to the 1,800 unions in the State explaining the situation and asking their assistance. The circulars will not be issued until after a meeting of the executive committee of the Central Labor Union Friday night. Radical action last night was only prevented by the fact that the committees were informed that there was a stay in the court proceedings looking toward a settlement.

After the meeting President Haddell of the Central Labor Union said: "If the teamsters' strike is not ended to-morrow we will go after the master teamsters and the Employers' Association banner and badge. There will be no let-up until the issue is fought out to a finish. Even if the strike is settled, we will not stop, but will keep after that Employers' Association and its open shop proposition, which means a shop which will be closed to union men.

At Brodhine Hall, last night, it was publicly given out that the smaller master teamsters are on the point of breaking away from the association, while the larger ones, who sought to have the piled up freight removed, are holding them in line by relinquishing all demands that the vote of last week forcing the unstruck firms to move the accumulated freight be carried out.

$50,000 NURSES HOME GIVEN BY H. H. ROGERS

Building Erected in Memory of His Late Physician, Dr. C. W. White, Jr.

NEW BEDFORD, May 15.—Quietly and without the presence of the donor or any member of his family, the formal transfer of the $50,000 nurses' home which Henry H. Rogers has erected in memory of his physician, Dr. Charles Warren White, Jr., was made to St. Luke's Hospital to-day. The transfer and dedication were informal as the wish of Mr. Rogers.

The building, the first given any local enterprise by Mr. Rogers, is handsomely arranged, the fittings, which he also contributed, bringing the cost of the structure up to about $75,000.

Dr. White, in whose memory the home is erected, was a native of Fairhaven and for years attended Rogers and his family while they were at their Summer home and accompanied them on trips abroad.

BILLIONS IN CONVENTION OF COTTON MEN

Meeting Now in Session in Philadelphia Declared the Largest Ever Held.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—Billions of dollars of capital in cotton mill establishments in the South, New England and the Middle West, it is estimated, are represented at the convention of the American Cotton Manufacturers' Association in session here. President Arthur H. Lowe of Fitchburg, Mass., who has been here since Monday, declared to-day the convention is the largest the cotton men have ever held. President Lowe and his officials have made preparations for entertaining more than 2,000 members. Plans have also been made for several thousands of visitors from the South and New England.

Vice-President Fairbanks, when he arrives to-morrow noon, will be taken to League Island, where he will be given the official salute.

JAPS SEEK YANKEE ALLIES

NEW YORK, May 15.—Japan has looked earnestly for an alliance with the United States because in substance we have always regarded this country as a real ally of Japan. We are desirous of having such an alliance if it could be arranged. As long, though, as any misunderstanding like the anti-Japanese feeling in San Francisco exists it might not be possible to bring about an alliance."

Thus declared Baron Ozawa, member of the House of Peers and special representative of the Emperor of Japan, in an interview here to-day. Baron Ozawa is the vice-president of the Japanese Red Cross Society, was commissioned by the Emperor to ascertain the existence of anti-Japanese feeling in this country, and to express the thanks of the Emperor to those Americans who aided Japan during the severe famine in northeast Japan after the war with Russia.

BODY OF UNKNOWN FLOATING IN BAY

A man's body which had been in the water for many weeks was found floating in the bay on the north side of Lewis wharf to-day. Medical Examiner McDonald will perform an autopsy. The man was 6 feet 0 inches tall, weighed 150 pounds and wore a dark striped suit, with a linen and white shirt and black button shoes. He looked like a workingman.

WOMAN'S SCREAMS SCARE OF BURGLAR

Awakened by the sound of someone trying her windows at an early hour to-day, Mrs. Annie Bittner of No. 313 Vine street, Cambridge, told the police that she saw a man outside of the house apparently trying to break in. Her screams frightened him away. Mrs. Julia Iwaste of No. 79 Linn street, Cambridge, reported to the police that her flat had been broken into and jewelry stolen. At 12 o'clock

HAYWOOD'S FOES DECLINE TO TESTIFY

Prosecution's Chief Witnesses, Including General Bell, Not Expected.

TO CHALLENGE SIX JURORS

BOISE, Idaho, May 15.—Six men on the present panel of jurors in the trial of William D. Haywood for the murder of former Governor Steunenberg, who have been provisionally accepted by both sides, are to be peremptorily challenged by one side or the other before the panel is finally accepted. This was stated today, prior to convening of court by one of the leading attorneys for the State.

When court reconvened this morning, but two members of the provisional jury remained to be examined by the defense for "cause." Ten had been passed by both sides, chiefly because they declined to admit either bias or existence of opinion in the case. This attitude piqued the attorneys on the defensive and compelled them to resort to the peremptory challenge to dissolve unimpressionable talesmen. The first man who will go is Ewing, No. 1, who, under Eastern procedure, would be foreman. He will be challenged by the prosecution.

Witnesses Desert Prosecution.

The air is still full of rumors as to contemplated surprises in the case, but actual facts are that both sides are more or less "up against it." The prosecution has discovered that some of its most valued witnesses will not swear to circumstances hinted at by them in unofficial statements, and the defense has discovered some witnesses who have been counted to refute circumstantial facts, are not in a position to do so.

It is designed to men in a position to know that 50 per cent of the witnesses invited to come from Colorado and Wyoming to tell their story of alleged wrongwrought by the Western Federation of Miners have declined to come. Chief of these is said to be General Sherman Bell.

Yesterday's proceedings were practically devoid of feature, and the monotonous examination of prospective jurors continued until court adjourned.

The only real development was Richardson's gibing way in his associate, Darrow, in the examination for the defense. He was seen also that there are but one Democrat and a solitary Prohibitionist summoned on the present panel.

Refer to President's Comment.

It is evident that the defence proposed to lay much stress throughout the case on what they allege to have been an interference on the part of President Roosevelt and Secretary Taft. The line of questioning invariably goes into President Roosevelt's "undesirable citizens" letter and into the speech delivered by Secretary Taft at Pocatello and Boise during the last gubernatorial election in which Mr. Taft supported Governor Gooding and commended his attitude on what was then known as the "Moyer, Haywood, Pettibone case."

Mrs. Steve Adams, wife of one of the men whom the prosecution claims to have been in the hire of the Western Federation and one of the important witnesses for the State in the Haywood case, sat inside the inner rail during the afternoon session and was for some time in earnest conversation with Mrs. Haywood, wife of the defendant.

GERRISH MUST GO, IS BELIEF AT CITY HALL

Mayor Fitzgerald will make his final decision probably by night upon the case of Master James R. Gerrish, Deputy Master Lorenzo D. Parkis and Dr. Albert A. Taft, the deposed officials of the Deer Island House of Correction.

That there will be but one outcome to the case no one at City Hall doubts and that is that Gerrish will have to go with him Deputy Parkis. There is strong rumor that Dr. Albert A. Taft will be allowed to stay.

The Mayor's friends say he cannot do otherwise than stick to his decision in regard to Gerrish. Gerrish held and still holds, so he said at last evening's hearing, that he alone has the right to dismiss subordinates of the island.

All subordinates in all departments above Mayor Fitzgerald assumed office are appointed by the Mayor himself and are dismissed by him. For him to admit that any one else had this power would be ruinous from a political standpoint. Even such a professional board as the board of health and such a judicial body as the election commissioners take orders directly from the Mayor in regard to appointments.

HELD ENDS OF JUGULAR VEIN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

AKRON, O., May 15.—Fred Cooper, a wealthy manufacturer, and Noah Stump quarrelled at a carnival, and the latter, it is alleged, cut his opponent's throat with a pocket knife, almost severing Cooper's jugular vein.

While a bystander went after a physician, Edward Strole grasped the ends of the injured vein, and for more than a half-hour stayed the flow of blood, never releasing his hold till a doctor arrived. Cooper will recover.

SUBMARINE OCTOPUS QUICKLY RISES WHEN SUPPOSEDLY "DISABLED."

NEWPORT, R. I., May 15. The test of depth had been reached in the gauge, then came the order to rise to the surface, and up came the Octopus as easy as a hen, as a vessel could rest upon. About thirty tons of water was blown out, and the automatic arrangement was perfect, showing clearly that with such a contrivance there should be no accidents in submerges that would endanger their crew.

These tests are made every time the submarine is called upon to go down, and can be made as well alongside the wharf as when in a submerged condition.

The Octopus was prepared for diving, and she went ahead ten knots with her conning tower submerged, with the use of her periscope propelled for firing her torpedoes in twenty feet of water. She fired two Whitehead torpedoes from her bow tubes a few seconds after each other, but their course could not be distinguished. One of the torpedoes became embedded in the sand and was picked up.

SUFFRAGISTS FAIL AGAIN

LONDON, May 15.—The first attempt of the women suffragists to elect a member of Parliament favorable to their cause has resulted in a flat failure. In the by-election in the northeast or Wimbledon district of Surrey, Hon. Bertrand Russell, who made his campaign on an out and out woman's suffrage platform, has been defeated by Chaplin, the Conservative candidate, by a vote of 10,253 to 3,299.

SAVES $2,000 ON $2 A DAY

ANACONDA, Mon., May 15.—Although he had seldom earned more than $2 a day, Andy Heslin, whose dead body was discovered in a half-frozen pond of stagnant water on the flat south of Butte, had saved about $2,000 during the last years of his life.

LEHR BACK TO HATED NEWPORT

NEWPORT, R. I., May 15.—Newport is indeed perfection, lovely, the garden spot of the earth, but the people are horrid," so Harry S. Lehr is supposed to have expressed himself last Summer, and also to have declared that he never would pass another season at this fashionable resort. He evidently has changed his mind, for he and Mrs. Lehr are looking for a cottage, which must be in Bellevue avenue. None of the side streets will do.

LITTLE HOPE FOR MAN, SELF-HYPNOTIZED

Doctors, Puzzled by Strange Case, Fail to Arouse Simpson of Southbridge.

SOUTHBRIDGE, May 15.—Andrew H. Simpson, the merchant of this city, living at No. 23 South street, who two weeks ago threw himself into a hypnotic trance, to-day still lingers in that deep sleep, and all his life is despaired of.

"While there is little hope in my case of that Dr. Wills nor Reed, the Simpson family physician, who is in charge of the strange case, can be induced to say. The doctor declares that "the secrecy of the sick room must be preserved, it is no body's business what ailment Mr. Simpson is suffering from."

It was on the night of the last Friday in April that Simpson voluntarily sank under the spell which has held him unconscious and deathlike ever since. His wife knew that he was a profound student of hypnotism, and he was reading a book on this subject until late that night. The next morning Mrs. Simpson could not awaken her husband. She left soon that he was under his own spell, and that he would awaken before very long.

One whole day passed, another, and the third day was waning when the woman, then thoroughly frightened, summoned Dr. Reed. Drs. Albert J. McCrea, Joseph G. Page, Carl J. Bradford, Francis H. Owens and Frank W. Edwards, who were called in, failed to awaken the unconscious man.

Last week Dr. Reed summoned two Worcester specialists, Drs. Leonard Woodward and Walter L. Haviland. Every day since then these skilled physicians have come from Worcester, sometimes alike distant, and for hours they have worked over Simpson, but no change has been produced in his condition.

He is fed a little liquid nourishment every day, but all efforts to arouse him have proved in vain. The specialists claim to have reached a right diagnosis, but they refuse to make public their opinions.

BENNINGTON, Vt., May 15.—The Bennington Y. M. C. A. formally opened its new building at the corner of Main and School streets yesterday, with an afternoon reception, at which Governor and Mrs. Prouty were guests.

DOCTOR HELD IN $1,000 FOR GIRL'S DEATH

Mysterious Fatality of Fair Fitchburg Young Woman Causes Sensation.

FITCHBURG, May 15. The arrest of Dr. Nathaniel Wallis, one of the prominent doctors of this city, charged with the responsibility of the death of pretty Ethel A. Ricker, whom it is alleged he treated illegally, has caused a sensation in this section of the State.

When arraigned in the police court the doctor pleaded no guilty and was released after giving bonds in the sum of $1,000 for a further hearing Friday. The circumstances of the physician and the sudden and mysterious death of the girl have attracted wide spread attention to the case.

Miss Ricker was twenty-two years of age. When her illness became dangerous and her death was only a matter of hours she told that she had been treated by Dr. Wallis. It is stated that she also declared that Dr. C. S. Burnell and Dr. C. R. Gray were called in, in an effort to save her life, but can which they realized the situation they refused to have anything to do with the case.

ROSALIND IVAN WINS SUCCESS

Olga Nethersole's illness in Philadelphia has led to the discovery of a remarkable actress, Rosalind Ivan, who until last week was known merely as a member of her company and her understudy.

Miss Ivan was not notified of Miss Nethersole's illness until she reached the theatre, and then had to go on for the title role in "Sapho." Without a single prompting from the stage manager, and with an intensity and abandon that carried the audience with her, she gave a perfect performance, and was rewarded with nine curtain calls, an unprecedented thing for Wednesday.

Richard Mansfield and Fritzi Scheff are two notable examples of the rise of understudies to stardom. Miss Ivan began her career as juvenile lead to Henry Irving and Ellen Terry.

CARUSO GIVES UP HIS FIGHT

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The end of the famous case of Enrico Caruso, the operatic tenor, arrested on November 16 last in the monkey house at the Central Park Zoo, on a charge of insulting a woman, has come rather abruptly to an end by the payment of the $10 fine imposed on Caruso and the withdrawal of the appeal to the Appellate Division.

One appeal was taken in the case, and the action of Magistrate Baker, sitting in the Yorkville courts, in finding Caruso guilty was affirmed by the Ten Recorder Court. A second appeal was taken to the Appellate Division.

It was announced Caruso would fight the case to the highest courts in order to vindicate himself, but he evidently changed his mind before he sailed.

FRANK GOULDS SEEK PEACE IN HOWARD'S HOME

Happy on Reconciliation With Wife, Youngest Son Tries to Avert Divorce.

LITTLE HOPE OF SUCCESS

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Frank Gould, happy in his reconciliation with his own wife, is earnestly trying to end the quarrel which threatens the disruption of his brother Howard's family. He has little hope of succeeding in his efforts as peacemaker, as recent developments indicate that Howard Gould and his wife have parted forever.

The unpleasantness in the Frank Gould family, in which his mother-in-law figured, has all blown over and the couple are happy as ever. The disagreement between the Howard Goulds, however, is of a more serious nature.

It was said last evening by a person close to the Goulds that all negotiations had been broken off, and that the question of financial arrangement for their separation had gone wrong.

This person declared that Mr. Gould understood perfectly that his wife and determined to bring him into court as the defendant in an action for limited divorce, and that he would do everything he possibly could to evade service of the complaint.

Neither DeLancey Nicoll, Mr. Gould's lawyer, nor Clarence J. Shearn, Mrs. Gould's attorney, would discuss the rumors that a process server had been trying to find Mr. Gould for several days, nor would either talk about the case in any way.

"I have simply made up my mind to say nothing about the Gould matter now or at any other time," said Mr. Nicoll. "I cannot make myself clearer. I have said and will not have anything to say.

"Will you state if there has been any arrangement reached whereby the suit of 'Big Howard' against Mr. Gould for $2,000,000 is to be dropped. Has the complaint been withdrawn?"

In that case you have been served upon you?"

"That is a feature of the Gould case, and I must positively decline to go into it."

One of the friends of Mrs. Gould is the woman who first made it known that the divorce was certain to come, as was seen last evening and, on condition that her name be withheld, she consented to talk.

"I do not know if the suit has actually been begun, or if Mr. Gould is trying to evade process service," she said. "I do know, however, that the action will be more certain to be started than it was early in the week, when the AMERICAN published the first information concerning it.

If You WORK—Why, You Can't Change Parties

Only Men Who Have Leisure in the Daytime Are Permitted to Join the Independence League

Members of the Independence League and others owe the Election Commissioners of the City of Boston an apology. They had the audacity to petition for a limited number of night sessions of the board, so that citizens might have an opportunity of changing their political party enrolment without losing a part of their working day.

They should have known better. They should have realized that the commissioners and their office staff are completely fagged out when evening comes, after the arduous labors of the day. They should have understood that keeping a public office open from 9 in the morning until 5 in the afternoon is a pretty tough job.

The very idea of expecting four men, three of whom receive only $3,500 a year and the fourth, the chairman, only $4,000, who have so much outside private business that they are able to spend only about an hour a day in the Election Commisioners' office, to grant any favors to workingmen!

The petitioners for evening sessions of the commission should have taken into consideration the fact that those overworked officials have hardly recovered from the two junkets recently taken by them to Chicago and Philadelphia "for the benefit of the voters," and which cost the taxpayers only $800.

The petitioners should have learned that the four commissioners are obliged to look after two assistant commissioners receiving $1,800 a year and four regular registrars who are paid only $1,700 for sitting around the office several hours a day, some days. For these reasons the petitioners for evening sessions should apologize to the hard-working election commissioners.

The following letter from the chairman of the board, in answer to the petition filed in behalf of the petitioners by the executive secretary of the Independence League, speaks for itself:

Dear Sir—The petition of members of the Independence League of Boston and others, representing that it is practically impossible for many who wish to join that party to visit our office during the daytime and change their enrolment, and therefore petitioning this board to hold a limited number of night sessions in order that those desiring to change enrolment may have an opportunity to do so without losing a part of their working day, has been received.

We have given the matter careful consideration, and have unanimously voted: Petition denied. Respectfully,

BOARD OF ELECTION COMMISSIONERS.
John H. Minton, Chairman.
No. 1 Old Court House.

"Unanimously voted" and "petition denied." These words tell the story.

We have no doubt that the Election Commissioners believe that NO MAN WHO HAS TO WORK DURING THE DAYTIME SHOULD BE PERMITTED TO CHANGE HIS POLITICAL PARTY.

ATTLEBORO, May 15.—The attempts of a neighbor to assassinate a stray feline making the night hideous with its screeching is now believed by the police to be the cause of the stray bullet which was fired into the house of Miss Katherine McClure, a Merritt place boarding mistress, on Sunday evening.

UNION MEN WIN TWO VICTORIES IN SHIP STRIKE

New oYrk Longshoremen Now Confident of Success in Fight for Better Wags.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Following two big victories today and the prospect of the capitulation of the fourteenth steamship line the striking longshoremen now say that before the end of the week every steamship company will be whipped into line and glad to get the men back at the increased wages demanded.

The surrender of the Hallen line which took its 250 longshoremen back at the new scale and the signing of an agreement with Patrick Toomey, the largest employer of stevedores, for loading vessels, are the two victories which have encouraged the strikers.

Agrees to Union Scale.

Toomey agreed to pay the wages asked by the union and not to coal any ship loaded or unloaded by strike-breakers.

Another set of concessions granted the strikers was the positive assurance given by Independence at Philadelphia that they will not unload any vessel, which usually docks at New York, if sent to the other port.

The real test for the shipping companies is expected to come in the next day or two. The incoming fleet of liners due here by Friday is the largest since the strike began.

Say Companies Must Yield.

Strike leaders declare the companies will be unable to handle the ships without their old men and that the congestion will become so great that companies will have to yield.

Officers of the steamship companies admit it will be something of a problem to take care of the vessels soon to arrive, but insist they can accomplish the task and will never surrender to the strikers.

One hundred strike-breakers were brought down from Fall River on the Fall River liner Priscilla today. They were taken off the boat under guard, followed on Fifth street by a crowd which hooted at the men.

The Fable of the Financial Agent, the Willing Worker and the Unwise People Who Judged the Latter by the Former.

By C. F. KING.

Once upon a time there was a Financial Agent, who had a business that from Small Beginnings had grown to Large Proportions because he had preached a Square Deal for Investors, and had always Practiced what he Preached.

This Financial Agent had many Friends. And on a day one of them came to him and said: "I have a friend who is a good workman, honest and energetic and faithful. He was once upon a time a Business Success, but lately he has been a Business Failure, through no fault of his own, and to-day he is an Active Member of the Down and Out Club. Can you give Job.

Thereupon an appointment was made, and the Financial Agent had a Talk with the Friend's Friend, and looked him over and decided that there was Material in him for a Good Man, if he was Taught Properly and Handled Right. For the Friends' Friend was Honest in Appearance, and Straightforward in Manner, and seemed like the kind of a man that might go out and set the World Afire if somebody would only get him the Matches and show him how to Light Them. The Financial Agent thereupon gave him a job.

In the Beginning his Pay was so Small that nothing about it encouraged him to sit in Boxes at the Opera, or purchase Cabs when he wanted to go about the City, or even to partake of Luncheon at the first-class Hotels. It was not long, however, before the Wages started to Climb, and when six months had rolled by the Friend's Friend was drawing down the biggest pay envelope he had ever seen in his Life, and there was nothing to prevent him having Strawberry Shortcake at every meal if the Spirit Moved him to take that chance with his Stomach.

One day the Financial Agent sent for the Friend's Friend, who had now become a Valuable Workman, and addressed him thus:

"The Business is Getting Bigger and Bigger every day, and I have decided that it is necessary to Open a Branch Office in another city. I observe that you are Industrious, that you are a Hard and Willing Worker, that you have Capacity and Energy—in short that you have Made Good. Therefore, it is my Intention to send you to the New Office, where you will have the title of Manager and All Kinds of Opportunities to Prove that as an Executive you are a Coming Man."

Thereupon the New Manager expressed his thanks in a few Well-Chosen Words and Departed for the new office to assume the Responsibilites of his New Position.

* * * * *

Some months passed, during which the New Manager continued to be a Successful Employe. He performed the duties of his job in a manner Generally Satisfactory, and came to look upon himself with Great Commendation. This feeling of Respect which he felt for his own Ability was Heightened by the Words of Certain Flatterers, who took opportunity to inform him, from time to time, that a Man of his Ability, Energy and Winning Manner should never work for a Salary, however Big it might be, but should Force Fortune to untie her Pursestrings in a manner commensurate with his Greatness.

"You are It in this Office," they said to him. "The Financial Agent does not live in this City. He spends but a comparatively small part of his time here. He gives you orders by Mail or Wire, but after all is said and done, it is You and not He who carries on the business here. Not one-third of all the people who do business with this office ever saw him. You are the Real Noise. Therefore, you should proceed to Get Busy and make him Loosen Up Exceedingly, or else leave him and take all his Business with you."

After a Great Deal of this kind of talk had been poured into the Willing Ear of the New Manager, he went up to the Financial station for a Parlor Car on the next limited train, arrayed himself in Purple and Fine Linen and journeyed to the home of the Financial Agent, with whom he was soon engaged in Conversation.

* * * * *

"I have come," he said, "to call your attention to the Lamentable Fact that I am not appreciated. Although I am the Real Box of Perfectoes at the Branch Office, and ought to receive a Major Portion of all the Coin that comes into my Place of Business, I am working for a Salary—merely enough to allow me to live in Style and attend the Opera and Horse Show. I have been in your employ for a year, during which time I have risen to my present Eminence. I have the title of Manager of your branch office. I dictate the Letters. I interview the Customers. I turn down the Peddlers and Canvassers. I have the entire Responsibility of seeing that the janitor does his duty to your employes by keeping the Heat turned on. I am regarded by those who come in for Advice as the No. 1 High Squeeze in the Office of Wise Information. I have learned all the Principles that go with the conduct of a Successful Business, and I have decided that my pay envelope should get about Eight Hundred and Forty per cent. fatter Forthwith."

"Proceed," said the Financial Agent.

"I have a Proposition to make," continued the New Manager, after he had cleared his Throat. "I have estimated that you spend one-tenth of your time in my office, which is the capital of an agreement with Patrick Toomey, the largest employer of stevedores, for loading vessels, are the two victories which have encouraged the strikers.

"I have come to you as a Stranger, unknown and unheralded, you would not have Bought his Alleged Securities, or Loaned him Money, or Trusted him without Investigation."

"That also is true," was the answer. "We Trusted him because he had been Identified with You and Your Policies."

* * * * *

Then the Financial Agent spoke as Follows:

"In this world some men are born with so much Energy and Enthusiasm that they cannot do all that they desire with their own Hands, their own Minds or their own Strength. Such if man cannot write all the Letters he would like to—else he would do Nothing Else. He cannot talk with every man who has Business with Him—else he would merely Talk all the time. He cannot attend to all the Petty Details of a Big Business—else he would be nothing but a System Clerk.

"Such a man, therefore, has to have Lieutenants. He takes men whom he can Trust and makes them Understand his Ideas and his Ideals. He teaches them how he wishes his business Done. He places them in It. By and by the men become to all business intents and Purposes a part of their Employer When they are asked a Business Question they reply to it as their Employer would Reply.

"This condition is true in all great enterprises," the Financial Agent continued. "It is true in mine. I no longer can see everyone I wish to see—I have no longer can see everyone I wish to see—I have Four Thousand Customers. I no longer can answer every letter personally—I receive Five Hundred Letters a Day. I can look over them, and I can hear what I is People wish to say to me—much of the Labor of Talking to the People or Replying to the Letters must be Delegated to Others. Those Others are Intelligente—know my Thoughts, my Ideas, my Methods. When they speak they speak for me. But when the time comes that one of Them leaves my employ he ceases to get his Thoughts, his Authority, from me. Thereafter, when he Speaks, he speaks for himself Instead of, as before, for me when he spoke in Response

"It occurs over and over again in business," concluded the Financial Agent, "that a man seems to have a Reputation and his Word seems to be Worth its Par Value merely because he is one man's Employer has a reputation and His word is Worth Par. It is a Lesson Well Learned when you can Disassociate the Former Employe from his Former Employer, and Realize mer Employe from his Former Employer, and Realize that such Business Reputation as he Personally has is the Reputation he Builds for Himself after he is at Work for Himself."

* * * * *

Moral: He who Trusts an Untried Man merely because of the Reputation, Prestige and Influence of a Former Employer or Associate, is Getting Away from Firm and Stable Ground, and his feet are Dangerously Near a Trembling Quicksand.

"God Had Not Forgotten Her!"

MAUD SMITH MERELY IMAGINED THIS. HER LIFE CLOUDED THE VISION OF GOD. KEEP IN GOOD SURROUNDINGS AND THE VISION WILL BE CLEAR AND UNBROKEN.—The Rev. Albert E. George.

LESSONS OF WARNING IN GIRL'S FATE

A Little More Love May Save Souls Sucked into Maelstrom of Life, Pleads Clergyman.

WORLD'S UNEQUAL FIGHT

By Rev. Albert E. George.

The body of the girl who died at the Relief Station at Haymarket square and who gave her name as Maud Smith has, after an interval of five days, been identified by her father, Edward Hackett of No. 164 Sumner avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y. Her real name is Maud Florence Hackett.

The authorities of the Relief Station felt that there was a history back of the girl. Five years ago Miss Maud Florence Hackett married Matthew Davis at Rochester, New Hampshire.

For some time they lived in Haverhill, Mass., and a boy was born to them named Nathan Davis.

Their home was soon after this broken up. The mother, so young and so unhappy in her married life, was obliged to face a cold, unsympathetic world.

She sent her boy to be boarded out in a home in North Salem, New Hampshire.

Bitter Struggle for Life.

Then began her own struggle in Boston to support herself and her babe.

It was a bitter, heart-rending struggle. She assumed the name of Maud Smith. For a time she partly succeeded in her efforts.

Her father to the meantime had lost all trace of her.

Maud did everything to keep her troubles to herself. Temptations came to her. She hesitated before she would commit herself to them. But the sting of poverty, the thought of supporting her child, and her unwillingness to tell her father, made the burden of living unbearable.

She fell into a type of life that made her feel more than ever she must keep her trials to herself.

How often must she have thought of her little son in the hands of strangers and longed to make a home for herself and her child?

Dragged into the Toils.

It was not to be. Maud was saddened at her prospects. She was in the embrace of a life that was dragging her down.

She knew it, she felt it in every action, but probably no kind voice awakened her out of the indifference.

"I guess God isn't very much interested in my case," she exclaimed.

Helpless, forlorn, sad and overburdened with illness, she was taken to the Relief Station, and there she stared for a while, breaking the silence of her life only by a few utterances like this: "I believe God has lost interest in me."

Then she passed away with a secret upon her lips.

Had she a father? Had she a mother? For ten days she remained unidentified and just before she would have been consigned to a pauper's grave tidings reached the ears of her father in Brooklyn.

Father Learns Secret.

He hastens to the Relief Station with some misgiving that the unidentified girl may be his own daughter.

He is warned to be careful about identification. He looks upon the face and then asks that the left hand be exposed, and there a burn is found. It tells the story. It is his long lost daughter, and the scar of the burn reminds him of an incident of childhood days. It is really Maud.

Where is her child?

The grandfather is now scouring the city of Boston, with the police, in an endeavor to locate it.

"God Had Not Lost Interest."

"God had not lost interest in her." She merely imagined this. Her life clouded the vision of God. Keep in good surroundings and the vision will be clear and unbroken.

Every woman who fights the world alone, deserted and discouraged, must fight it on the side of good desires.

Every woman left with a child, and abandoned by her husband, must not be too proud to let her wants be known.

There are always kind souls who will respond to the needs of such cases. The poor are great sympathizers. The soul of a woman has made a mistake in her manner of living, never go on selling darkness. Stop and think!

It always pays to be good, even though you suffer for it.

Many a young woman goes down hill, because she does not reckon about what it means at first.

Stop at the Beginning.

Maud Smith lived to much in her discouragements and probably no kind voice ever warned her. Had some warm, sympathetic association been thrown around her at the proper time, she would have escaped the privation and suffering that fell so heavily upon her in the end.

Just a little more well-placed love and good will for the tempted and unfortunate in this world will save them from a remorseful life and make them feel that "God is interested in their case," and keep the future Maud Smiths away from feeling the coldness and tyranny of many selfish people around us.

TROLLEY LINE FOR MARLBORO

MARLBORO, May 15.—Charles E. Stevens, Sudbury, representing the promoters of an electric railway line from Marlboro to Boston, through Waltham, has been securing signatures of citizens to his petition for a franchise.

To-day he said: "We propose to enter Marlboro at Middlesex square and our route will be along the line of the State highway, past the Wayside Inn, through Sudbury, Wayland and Weston to Waltham, from where we will run into Boston over the present tracks.

"We propose to do a freight as well as passenger business."

MAN KILLED IN SUBWAY WRECK

NEW YORK, May 15.—Through the wrecking to-day of a subway train one man was killed, many persons were bruised in the panic which followed and the Lenox avenue branch of the road was filled for more than an hour by impenetrable smoke.

By a series of accidents which resulted from the wrecking of a train by a short circuit most of that section of the Bronx depending on the subway for power was cut off from Manhattan. After the train had started, Cyrus Mellon, a track walker, unable on account of the smoke to see approaching trains was struck and killed. His body was pinned beneath a car and it was fully an hour before the wrecking train arrived to jack up the car and released the body.

HALF-ACRE MORE OF FLOOR SPACE

Holmes, Luce & Co. of Nos. 140, 142 and 144 Washington street have leased for a long term of years the two brick buildings numbered 4, 5 and 6 Dock square, adjoining the store now occupied by them. This will add nearly one-half acre of floor space to their present building. Extensive alterations will be made, a modern passenger elevator will be installed, with other improvements, making this one of the most attractive and convenient furniture stores in Boston.

TWO JOHN F. FITZGERALDS ON BALLOT

Entry of Mayor's Namesake Into Race Recalls Daniel Whelton Ruse.

WAGE EARNERS' CANDIDATE

"Chickens come home to roost."

Mayor John F. Fitzgerald became a firm believer in the truth of this old adage when he got down town to-day and learned that he would be opposed for Mayor next Fall in the primaries by another John F. Fitzgerald who would run as a wage earners' candidate.

In the last city election His Honor, Frank J. Horgan, Fred A. Whitred Coakley and other members of the Mayor's cabinet thought it a great joke and likewise a splendid piece of political strategy when Daniel Whelton of Bolton place, South Boston, was secured to run for alderman on the same ticket with Alderman Daniel A. Whelton of Ward 8. It looked as if in the confusion of the two names that the real Daniel A. Whelton might go down to defeat, which would be a blow to the Mayor's strenuous political enemy, Martin M. Lomasney of Ward 8. But the fake Daniel Whelton withdrew after stating that Frank J. Horgan, whom the Mayor afterwards made a political assessor, had induced him to run.

"He Who Laughs Last——"

Now he is up against the same kind of a proposition himself, and it looks very much like "chickens coming home to roost." Mayor Fitzgerald, "Tim" Coakley and Frank Hogan had nothing to do with putting Mr. Whelton of South Boston in the field last Fall, but they thought it a great joke and always laughed uproariously when asked about it.

Undoubtedly John F. Fitzgerald of South Boston is a bona fide candidate, and undoubtedly Mayor Fitzgerald's political enemies had nothing to do with putting him in the field, but the situation appears to those who are against "Fitz," and they laugh just as uproariously as did His Honor, Coakley and Horgan a few months ago.

Wage Earners' Candidate.

John F. Fitzgerald, who is in the field as a wage earners' candidate for Mayor, has lived in Boston for fifty-six years and for twelve years has been treasurer of Boston Roofers' Protective Union No. 17, who last night adopted resolutions favoring him and declaring that "the rank and file of organized labor is thoroughly dissatisfied with the manner in which affairs at City Hall have been carried on for many years."

The organization pledged itself to approach all the other crafts affiliated with the Building Trades' Council for the purpose of enlisting their support for the workingman's candidate. Mayor Fitzgerald was condemned for failing to make good on his promise to raise the pay of the city laborers to $2.25 a day.

SNAPSHOT MAN READY TO CATCH 10 MORE FACES

Lucky Ones Will Probably Be Chosen by Camera Tomorrow if Weather Permits.

LOOK FOR 'EM NEXT SUNDAY

The BOSTON AMERICAN Snapshot man is ready for his third week's trip.

Out of the ten pictures he published in the last issue of the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN nine have been identified. The nine originals of these pictures get ten dollars apiece. Only one is left out of the ten to be identified. That is Number 4, the woman who is holding her right hand to her hat to keep the wind from blowing away her headgear. The Snapshot Man would be glad to have her call at No. 82 Summer street and identify herself for the ten-dollar prize.

Ready to Start Out Again.

Having disposed so satisfactorily of his second week's batch of friends the Snapshot Man is thinking of starting out again to take some pictures for next Sunday.

It looks to the Snapshot Man as though to-morrow (Thursday) would be a pretty good day for snapshots, weather permitting, of course. It also seems to the Snapshot Man as though Boylston street would be a likely district for pictures, where he will be sure to meet some attractive women and pretty girls.

"Just what time of day?" you ask.

He'll Be There—Some Time.

"Well, thereabouts, or maybe later in the day," says the Snapshot Man.

So, if you are there during the hours above stated, you may get "snapped."

And then you may get ten dollars.

Read the BOSTON SUNDAY AMERICAN next Sunday to make sure.

THE BEST $3.50 SHOES FOR MEN

DO YOU WEAR W. L. DOUGLAS SHOES? IF NOT, I BELIEVE I CAN GIVE YOU GOOD AND SUFFICIENT REASONS WHY IT WILL PAY YOU TO WEAR THEM.

I give the wearer the benefit of my thorough and practical knowledge of shoemaking, which has extended over fifty years.

I give the wearer the benefit of my exclusive method of tanning the bottom soles, which makes them more flexible and gives longer wear than any other sole leather produced in this country.

As I am the largest manufacturer of men's fine Hand-Sewed Process shoes in the world, it is necessary for me to purchase leather and other materials in enormous quantities; the benefit of the very low prices I obtain I give to the wearer in superior quality over other makes.

If I could take you into my large factories at Brockton, Mass., and show you how carefully W. L. Douglas shoes are made, you would then understand why they hold their shape, fit better, wear longer and are of greater value than any other make.

W. L. Douglas, Brockton, Mass.:
For the past six years I have worn W. L. Douglas $3.50 shoes. They have given me more comfort, hold their shape, and wore better than any $5.00 or $6.00 shoe which I have ever worn.

DRAWTENDERS DRAW THEIR PAY; THAT'S ALL

Costs Boston Seven Thousand Dollars a Year to Maintain Closed Bridge.

SAYS IT'S PART OF GAME"

Is this not a peaceful scene?
"It is."
What is this?
"This is the Mt. Washington avenue bridge during a rush hour."
Is this a useful bridge?
"No, for bridge purposes, but for city Administration purposes it is a good bridge."
How much does this cost the taxpayers of Boston?
It costs $7,000 each year. This is paid to draw-tenders and for repairs.
Do the drawtenders tend?
No.
Do they draw their salaries?
Somewhat.
Listen:
The Mt. Washington avenue bridge is built over Fort Point channel. One end of the bridge rests on the Dorchester avenue extension. The other is on A street, South Boston.
Once this was a busy bridge. Horses and wagons went across it twenty-four hours a day. Drawtenders were needed to open and shut the bridge when ships passed through the channel. All this maintenance cost the city $7,000 a year.

Pay High for Closed Bridge.

On July 1, 1904, the bridge was closed. Each year since that the taxpayers have paid out at least $7,000 to maintain the bridge—that is, to pay the salaries of drawtenders and pay for repairs on the bridge.
Will the drawtenders continue to draw their pay?
You bet! Just as long as the taxpayers stand for it.
And now what next?
Alderman Baldwin of South Boston wants the city to borrow $60,000 for the purpose of rebuilding the bridge. He introduced an order in the board Monday, and it was referred to the committee on finance.
The order, if passed, will give many men work getting the bridge in condition so that it will need tending. In the meantime the drawtenders will continue to draw money for near tending.
On July 1, 1904, there were nine men on the payroll of the bridge department doing duty at Mt. Washington avenue bridge. During the next year one assistant drawtender was dropped, and since then up to February 1 of this year there have been eight men drawing pay on account of work supposed to be done on the bridge. While there has been to draw at the bridge only one man and some times there have been drawing $7,000 a year from the city as drawtenders or assistant drawtenders.

Bridge Closed in 1904.

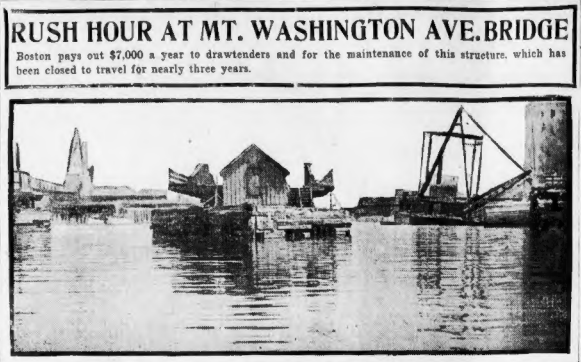
The bridge was closed July 1, 1904, in order that an order of the War Department that the draw be widened from forty-two to fifty-five might be fulfilled. The widening was completed, but the bridge has never been in use since the day it was closed to permit the widening.
While it was only open to travel for five months of the financial year ending January, 1905, it cost the city that year $8,755.99 to maintain it, $8,400.00 of that for salaries of drawtenders and assistants. During the next year when it was not open at all it cost for maintenance $7,464.-35, of which $7,227.50 was for salaries, one drawtender evidently having been transferred because there was no work for him. During the financial year just closed, when the bridge likewise was not open for travel, it cost the city $7,182.77 for maintenance of the bridge. During the past year the city paid in salaries for the drawtender and assistants on the bridge $6,904.13, one of the eight previously employed not finishing the year out.
The payroll of the Mt. Washington avenue bridge at the close of the fiscal year was as follows: Thomas F. Cloney, tender, $1,000 a year; Samuel R. Edgeworth, first assistant, $800; Daniel N. Ford, first assistant, $800 a year; John Collins, Fredrick Friedenthal, Morris Jacobs, Alfred Solomon and Michael Mooney, assistants, $800 a year each. The payroll of these drawtenders was used in order to attend to but the drawing of their pay found $7,000 for the financial year closing June 30, 1907.
All but Cloney, Edgeworth and Ford were transferred to other bridges February 1, but those three remain at the Mt. Washington avenue bridge now, or are supposed to be there.
Cloney has worked on the Summer street bridge and the Dover street bridge. Edgeworth is said to do work at the L street bridge. Ford is said to work on the Summer street bridge.

Pays Visit to Bridge.

Cloney visited the Mt. Washington avenue bridge yesterday.
He walked around a little and then went away.
"I come down to the bridge once in a while," he said to a reporter. Sometimes it is once in three or four weeks. Then, maybe, it is not so often. You see, a vessel passed through the channel some time ago and knocked off a piece of the bridge, so I like to to come down once in a while to see to things."
Mr. Cloney walked away.
Asked what the reason was for keeping men there, a prominent City Hall official replied:
"It's a part of the game."

RUSH HOUR AT MT. WASHINGTON AVE. BRIDGE

Boston pays out $7,000 a year to drawtenders and for the maintenance of this structure, which has been closed to travel for nearly three years.



NEWS AGENTS MAKE MERRY AT BANQUET

Gather from All Over New England as Guests of Suburban Newsdealers' Association.

Good fellowship reigned at the United States Hotel last evening when news agents from all New England gathered as guests of the Suburban Newsdealers Association for brief respite from the burdens and worry incidental to the distribution of the modern dailies.
The banquet was the "one best bet" on the social calendar for the majority of the newsdealers and when Chairman George E. Martin, in the absence of Toastmaster F. A. Easton of Worcester, called the assemblage to order for the first prandial exercises, there were few if any of the provincial news agents not represented at the festive board.

The Guests of Honor.

The association had as its guests General Charles H. Taylor, Hon. John N. Cole, speaker of the Massachusetts House of Representatives; L. W. Rogers of the Boston Herald, Thomas Dowse of the Boston Globe, D. A. Mahoney of the Boston Post, Eugene McKernon of the Boston Traveler, T. J. Edwards of the Boston Tribune, Fred J. Mckean of the Boston Journal and H. H. Van Gelder of the BOSTON AMERICAN. While the members regaled themselves at the banquet board they were entertained by orchestral and vocal selections.
In opening the after dinner exercises Chairman Martin spoke of the advantages to be gained by organization in the association, its aims and purposes, and touched briefly upon the improvements and successions that the association had already made and to secure by united effort.
Hon. John N. Cole talked informally of his experiences as a publisher and gave some interesting anecdotes on public life.

Committee and Members.

The committee in charge of the banquet were Ernest E. Merrin of Worcester, chairman; Fergus A. Easton of Worcester, George C. Wellington of Brockton, N. E. Wiley of West Medford, and J. F. Eber of South Framingham.
Among those present were E. F. O'Brien, W. L. Ledwidge and Hugh S. Boyer, Lynn; George E. Troupe and J. F. Eber, South Framingham; Lyman A. Floyd, Manchester; William J. Paine, Brookline; Charles H. Sargent, Ellery T. Perry and A. S. Peterson, Rockland; E. Wilbert Weir, Medford; Andrew Rice, Stoneham; Lewis McLaughlin, Watertown; Leslie A. Steele, West Somerville; A. F. Goodsmith, and C. A. MISS PARKER'S CHARITY WON MILLIONAIRE

Riches and Settlement Work in Romance of Boston Girl Begun on Orient Trip.

Miss Louise Parker, daughter of Edward F. Parker, a wealthy merchant of Boston, returned to this city to-day and was warmly congratulated by her friends on her engagement to Carl Albert Schwab of New York.
The romance began when the young people met aboard a steamship in the Mediterranean, three years ago, and discovered kindred tastes in each other.
The friendship, which had its inception under circumstances so favorable, grew during the tour through Egypt and the Holy Land and the return voyage to America.
Thereafter the young man, who is a younger brother of Gustav Schwab of the North German Lloyd Steamship Company, found frequent and pressing business reasons for his presence in Boston until a year ago, when Miss Parker went to New York and enlisted in the ranks of the workers in the Warren Goddard Settlement House, at No. 246 East Thirty-fourth street, New York.

Love in Charity Work.

Mr. Schwab, who is very wealthy in his own right, has been rector's assistant at the Protestant Episcopal church of the Intercession, at Broadway and One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street, for the past four years. Much of his work led to dealings with the great charities maintained by the church, under the supervision of the pastor, the Rev. Milo H. Gates.
But the friendship which had grown under the warm, bright skies of the Orient had already attained such proportions that it could no longer be called friendship, and the meetings of the young millionaire and pretty settlement worker were not confined, by any means, to the comparatively infrequent gatherings of the philanthropic workers at the United Charities building.
In the midst of his multiple duties Mr. Schwab found ample time for friendly investigation of the good deeds which were being done by the Goddard home, as interpreted by one of its most charming workers.

Soon to Wed Millionaire.

When seen yesterday in his apartment on West Fifty-fifth street Mr. Schwab confirmed the report of his engagement, but would go no further into his romance than to say the wedding day had not been fixed.
Miss Parker's action in leaving the settlement house Saturday to return to her home in Boston was interpreted by some of her friends to mean that she contemplated being married in the near future.

TAKE SOCIETY WOMAN FROM TRAIN INSANE

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—For the past three weeks the city has been caring for Mrs. John Sheridan, a prominent society woman of Montreal, Canada, where she is said to have a considerable bank account. Mrs. Sheridan was taken off a train violently insane and removed to the City Hospital.
With her was her sister, Mrs. Ada Dean of Worcester, Mass.

COREY MATCH A LOVE AFFAIR, SAYS PASTOR

Rev. J. S. Clark, Who Performed Marriage Ceremony, Defends His Action.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 15.—In the face of criticisms made by other Congregational ministers of Brooklyn, the Rev. J. L. Clark, of the Boulevard Avenue Congregational Church, who, early yesterday morning married William Ellis Corey, president of the Steel Trust, and Miss Mabelle Gilman, declared last evening that he was proud of what he had done and that he believed the marriage was a true love match.
After the declaration ten days ago by Bishop Burgess of the Episcopal Church that he would never agree to perform the ceremony because of the divorce in the Corey had subsided, there were repeated rumors that Mr. Corey had found it difficult to engage a minister and only secured Mr. Clark's services at the last moment.
The Rev. Mr. Clark makes a detailed explanation showing that this was not the case, but he maintains silence upon the size of the fee he received after the ceremony, beyond saying that it was less than $1,000.
"I would not have been at all shocked had the fee been $1,000," said Mr. Clark, "and would have promptly accepted it."
"About how much?" he was asked.

Got a "Good Big Fee."

"Well it was a good big fee. I will say that much."
Asked how he came to be selected as the one to perform the ceremony, Mr. Clark replied:
"I must every one to know that I feel mainly did not expect to have my services asked. Only a few good friends who are connected with the corporation of which Mr. Corey is the head, and I suppose one of them mentioned my name to him. All I know is that one week ago to-day I was out playing golf when a message reached me that some one wished to speak to me over the telephone. I found that Mr. Corey's secretary, Mr. Sloeum, was the person, and he asked me if I would officiate at the ceremony.
"I told him I should be pleased to do so, and were the fee in any way noticed Mr. Sloeum cautioned me to maintain secrecy regarding the matter, and I did so.
"Do you believe in Divorces?"

Divorce Good "in Some Cases."

"In some cases, and Mr. Corey's is one of the cases. I believe his marriage to have been a love match, pure and simple."
"On what grounds do you believe in divorce?"
"If a man and his wife find that they are continually disagreeing and bickering I think it is better for them to separate. I am sure most men would prefer to permit their wives to obtain a divorce if they found that their wives were no longer happy at home."
"I believe that what God has joined together let no man put asunder, but it must be evident to most persons that many marriages are made by man and not by God, and these the law should be allowed to correct."
Some of the other Congregational ministers of Brooklyn declared that they would not have consented to marry Mr. Corey and Miss Gilman, and evilleise Mr. Clark for officiating.

DEATH TRAIN STARTS ACROSS THE CONTINENT

Bodies of Victims of Honda Wreck Sent to Their Homes by Special.

SUITS TO REACH $2,000,000

By Boston American Leased Wire.

SANTA BARBARA, Cal., May 15.—A funeral special bearing more of the dead than the flying hearse yesterday morning, the only train of its kind that ever crossed North America. Already plans are being made in Eastern cities to send beautiful flowers to the trains as it flies upon its sombre way.
The car of dead was a bower of roses and lilies sent by members of the order of this city. There was a composite baggage car and a Pullman for the survivors and injured.
Early yesterday morning the undertakers of the city brought the dead to the station. There was a continuous line of hearses in the street until after 9 o'clock when the last of the unfortunates was placed tenderly in the cars.
The remaining shriners left at noon. There were many touching farewells, and the shriners have been shown that California is greater in her sympathy than in her merry making.
The evidence that has been collected yesterday seems to show an astonishing disregard for the safety of the public. There is reason to believe that the company sent the ill-fated Shriners upon their way over a track weakened by criminal negligence, with two extra engines in their train that smashed the eggshells the moment trouble came, and drawn up a pile of junk in the shape of an engine that was ready for the rubbish heap.
Loose bolts in the track, fish plates perishable cars and an engine that runs "like a cork screw," will be strong points of evidence when the avalanche of prospective damage suits are brought. And suits will be forthcoming in all probability. Already at least one attorney has been provisionally retained here to represent the interests of the victims of the wreck. It is said that the amount of damages asked may reach the sum of two millions of dollars.

IS DRIVEN MAD BY CIGARETTES

NEW YORK, May 15.—Within six months after he began to smoke cigarettes, fourteen-year-old George Miller, of Bridgeport, Conn., was suffering from hallucinations.
On Friday the child ran away from the home of his father, Nathan Miller, under the illusion that men and devils were pursuing him.
Early yesterday morning he was found wandering in the marshes of the Housatonic River, near Bridgeport. Though half frozen and weak from hunger, the boy ran half a mile and then sought to leap into the river when constables went to arrest him.
He became violent when deprived of the cigarettes and was sent to the Middletown Insane Asylum.

TWO DEAD IN POISON CASE

SANDWICH, N. H., May 15.—The sudden death of Moulton M. Lee, 76 years old, following that of 8-year-old Jewell Burnham, has increased the mystery surrounding the alleged poison plot in the Charles S. Burnham household.
Lee was found dead in his room when Mr. and Mrs. Burnham returned from an automobile ride about 8 o'clock last evening.
There are hints to-day that poison had been put in certain of the food used at the Burnham house. A careful search made after the death of Jewell, proved ineffectual, and an examination of the well water used disclosed nothing of danger.
Medical Referee Hodsdon decided it would be advisable to have a further examination of the viscera, and will forward them to the department of chemistry at Dartmouth College.
Moulton Lee worked for J. C. Percy of Worcester, Mass., for over 30 years, and, having accumulated a competence, returned to Sandwich, the home of his boyhood, to spend his remaining days.

TRIES TO DIE A HUSBAND DI

Identifying as her husband the body of the man who committed suicide last night by jumping off the Charlestown bridge, at the North Station morgue, Mrs. Delia Black, of 2 West Concord street went to the bridge to end her life, but was caught by a brother just as she was going over the railing.
Patrolman William Bailey was a little distance away, and hearing the cries hurried to the scene and brought the couple to the 1st Square station, where during her hour's stay, Mrs. Black moaned and wept for her dead husband. She was later taken to her home on West Concord street. It is said she tried to drink carbolic acid previous to jumping over the railing and was prevented by a brother.

Live Forever!

THE SECRET OF PERFECT YOUTH REVEALED FOR ALL

Easy Rules for Avoiding Death Are Explained by Harry Gage—"All You Have to Do Is to Keep Creating a New Body."

"BOSTON is the headquarters of the advanced thought of the world. It used to be a saying 'See Rome and die.' This has been displaced by the modern advice 'See Boston and live—forever.'"

This was but one of the many tributes paid to the broad mindedness and progressiveness of Boston by Harry Gaze last night during his lecture in Claickering Hall, "How to live Forever, or the Secret of Perpetual Youth."

For over a year, Mr. Gaze, who came to Boston from London via the Pacific coast, has been teaching Bostonians that it is folly to grow old and die and easy to stay young and live forever.

He has accomplished wonders and is now the recognized leader of the most advanced thinkers of the Newest Thought Cult.

A year ago less than a score of Boston people planed their faith to his theory. To-day several hundreds have adopted that faith as their own and are making plans to remain young as long as they live and to live forever.

Gospel Spreads from Hub.

More than that, the gospel has spread from Boston as a veritable hub to all corners of the world, and live forever disciples send greetings from Australia and New Zealand.

"Old age is merely a disease," declared Mr. Gaze last night, "it can be both prevented and cured. The scientists are proving constantly that single cell creatures never die. Nor do we ever need to die. It is simple to live forever. All you have to do is to keep creating a new body."

To hop out of one body as soon as it becomes shop worn and shabby and into a brand new fresh one is, according to Mr. Gaze, easier than the proverbial "rolling off a log."

"Jump Out of Old Body."

You start with the scientific fact that the body literally returns to dust in less than a year and that during that period a new body is constructed.

Then all there is to do is to have conscious co-operation with this change. This is done mentally, spiritually and physically.

The idea of bodily age is eliminated from the mind. The body is made to harmonize with the principles of hygiene.

This involves a life free from worry, uneasiness, hate, anger and meat food. It demands a life built on love principles and higher thought and nourished by a diet of fresh fruit and distilled water.

Think never of old age, decay or death, but always of youth and vigor, health and life everlasting.

Practical Suicide.

"This constant preparation for old age which people make or practically constitutes suicide," was one of the statements made by Mr. Gaze in his lecture. "When we go about constantly expecting to grow old, talking about our age, looking for wrinkles and gray hair and the other marks of old age, that very expectancy is creating old age. As a matter of fact, old age is merely a habit and one which we can easily break by mental and spiritual growth in the right direction.

In his philosophy Mr. Gaze declares that nature provides for the elimination of the human chaff while preserving the wheat.

"Those who by their methods of life are proven disadvantageous to the world," he said, "nature creates in them the death instinct which removes them."

Nobody knows how old Harry Gaze is. He has forgotten his last birthday. His figure is athletic, his skin clear and free from wrinkles, his eyes blue and keen, his hair yellow and luxuriant.

"Grow Young with World."

"Now is the time to begin to grow young," Mr. Gaze told his hearers, "take a lesson from nature. Nature is rejuvenating. It is crying out its youth and lapiness and beauty. Go out and get close to nature. Africa with it I am young. I am well. There is no death. Grow young with the world."

While growing young with the world, Mr. Gaze advises drinking fully two quarts of distilled water daily to dissolve the lime deposits of old age which may infest the system and which are at cross purposes with the life forever plan.

And finally he suggests that instead of looking forward in the time when we leave this earth for another world, that we use the possibilities within us to make this a paradise and create a heaven about us in which we may dwell daily and forever, always young, always happy, always progressing, constantly creating new bodies and making mind, heart and soul in harmony with the body.

ARCANUMITES GATHER FOR CONVENTION

One hundred and fifty Royal Arcanum delegates from all over the country, with their wives, are in Boston this morning for the Supreme Lodge session.

Their headquarters are at the Vendome. According to Supreme Secretary Alfred G. Turner, reports which will be presented this afternoon show a membership of 245,000, and an expenditure during the past year of $600,000.

At 2 o'clock this afternoon Governor Curtis Guild, Jr., and Mayor John F. Fitzgerald will welcome the delegates at the Vendome. Grand Regent James T. Shatton of Massachusetts will introduce the officials and Supreme Regent Howard C. Wiggin of Rome, N. Y., will respond to the welcome.

At 3 p. m. a reception will be tendered to the visiting ladies by a committee of Boston women, headed by Mrs. William L. Kelt. To-night there will be a reception to the officers and members of the Supreme Lodge by the Grand Lodge of Massachusetts. The rest of the programme is as follows:

Thursday: Trolley excursion to Lexington and Concord.

Friday: Special Royal Arcanum night at Keith's.

Saturday: Mayor Fitzgerald tenders a harbor excursion.

Sunday: Visit to the Christian Science Church.

Monday: Special Royal Arcanum night at the Pop Concert.

Tuesday: In the evening at the Vendome a musicale will be given under the direction of Mrs. Sanford Hanscom.

INDUSTRIAL SHOW ON OLD HOME WEEK

An immense industrial exhibition in Mechanics Hall will be one of the features of the celebration of Old Home Week in Boston, according to the plans of the general committee.

The exhibits will be shown in the exhibition hall, basement, balcony and gallery, and will consist of manufactured products, and other activities of home manufacture. The grand hall will be reserved for the use of visitors, the main floor being utilized in and under the balcony.

Afternoon and evening concerts will be given in the grand hall, probably by the Municipal Band. An exhibition of moving pictures will probably be arranged in Paul Revere Hall, all of which will be free to visitors. The halls will be beautifully decorated. The restaurant will be open in the dining room where refreshments will be served at moderate prices.

The halls will be open all day and evening, and will serve as a meeting place for friends, as well as headquarters for those desiring to rest during the day. An invitation is extended to those who are interested in exhibiting. Applications for space may be made to William L. Terhune, chairman of Committee, 179 South Street, Boston; or to Frederick M. Prescott, Superintendent of Exhibits, Room 956, Old South Building, Boston.

That's the reason why the limited number of sets at our disposal—all that will be available at anything like the present little price—are going even faster than we expected. That's also the reason—and a good one—why we again say very plainly that

Prompt Decision and Immediate Action Are Now Absolutely Necessary

THE COSMOPOLITAN MAGAZINE, as you know, secured exclusive control of all editions of THE CENTURY to be issued in 1907, and massed them into one mammoth edition for National distribution to secure high-class circulation. This big edition at a single printing materially reduced the cost of production, but the high CENTURY standard was carefully maintained in every particular—in paper, presswork, binding, everything. THE COSMOPOLITAN then CUT OFF EVERY PENNY OF THE BIG COMMISSIONS that had before been paid to book agents selling the work, and, with other economies, including all present profit to itself, brought down the price to

Only $39

For the Superb 10-Volume Set, the Lowest Former Price of Which Has Never Been Less Than $61, While the Century Co.'s Price Is $80. The Present Little Price Also Includes the Cosmopolitan Magazine for 2 Years. You Thus See the Great Bargain JUST NOW Available.

Guaranty of the Century Co.

This edition (for 1907) of the Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas, manufactured and published by us and just now being distributed by the Cosmopolitan Magazine, is unabridged, contains all the revisions and additions to date, is complete in every way, and is the latest and only edition published.

THE CENTURY CO.

And in addition to the little price temporarily made possible by THE COSMOPOLITAN, note these convenient terms:

One Dollar

Secures the Complete Set of 10 Large Volumes; Balance Only Two Dollars Monthly for 19 Months; or, if You Prefer, a 5% Discount for Cash

Thousands of sets were quickly distributed country-wide. THE COSMOPOLITAN then decided to apportion what remained among certain sections of the country where magazine circulation is most valuable, because based on quality as well as quantity. We were intrusted with the distribution of the limited number of sets allotted to Boston and New England, and the quick interest following our announcement has never been equaled in the history of our Book Department. In fact, the splendid CENTURY SET with THE COSMOPOLITAN for two full years affords

An Opportunity Never Before Offered, Which Will Not be Long Available and Which Will Not Be Repeated.

And so we say: If you want one of these superb sets—the latest, best and only edition published by THE CENTURY CO.—you should act at once, while you may still have a choice in the matter of binding.

If possible, come to our Book Department and examine this splendid edition in the different bindings. See for yourself what an attractive and valuable literary and educational offering is presented, and at what an exceptional bargain. If you cannot call, and still desire to inspect the volumes, you may, until further notice, send the initial dollar, and we will forward you a full set to your home for examination, and you may have five days in which to test the work as to your own particular needs, with privilege of return and money refunded. THE COSMOPOLITAN has authorized us to do this, for the time being, because the Magazine desires every one interested in THE CENTURY to have the fullest knowledge about the work itself (and especially regarding this revised, enlarged and improved edition for 1907), so as to be able to come quickly to an intelligent decision and secure one of the sets before the distribution closes. In thus requesting a set for examination you may use Paragraph 1 of the Request Form, printed, for your convenience, at the right. All transportation charges will be paid by us.

If, however, you prefer specific printed information about the work, by mail, you may use Paragraph 2 of the Form and we will send you, free, THE CENTURY Co.'s 64-page descriptive Book.

Little Letters from Prominent People

Hon. DAVID J. BREWER.

Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States.

For complete and condensed information there is nothing in our language to equal The Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas. There is nothing in our language which will so fully satisfy the demand for information—accurate, full and complete—as this work.

CHARLES W. ELIOT, LL. D.

President of Harvard University.

The Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas is a time-saving convenience. Constant use of it has taught me its value in very high degree, and in this new edition you have certainly added greatly to its merits.

Hon. JAMES BRYCE.

Author of "The American Commonwealth," British Ambassador at Washington.

The Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas is a masterpiece of condensation. An examination of it fills me with a strong sense of the care bestowed to insure accuracy. It is a work of exceptional value and utility, which I find most helpful in many ways.

Hon. RICHARD OLNEY, LL. D.,

Ex-Secretary of State of the United States.

I am constantly and successfully appealing to The Century Dictionary and Cyclopedia and Atlas to meet current needs, and appreciate its merits very highly.

Boston American Daily Home Magazine

Madame de Sabrisson, Famous Beauty Expert, Tells Women Readers of the Boston American Home Magazine

How to Have Plump Chest and Shoulders

She Says Any Woman Who Exercises Properly and Faithfully Can Soon Acquire a Pretty Figure

IN this, the second article by Madame de Sabrisson, the famous beauty expert tells women readers of this page how to fill hollows of the chest and shoulders.

By Madam de Sabrisson

NO hollow-chested woman can be beautiful. Nature meant the chest to be strong and full.

There is where the vital organs are located. If the chest is hollow, the vital organs are cramped.

Breathing is most important. Breathe deep, full breaths of pure, fresh air, inhaling and exhaling with vigor. In this way you draw in the fuel and expel the waste of your system.

But breathing alone does not always do the work of development, perhaps because people think breathing is such a simple and natural thing to do that they do not do it.

Figure I. shows the proper position to take in beginning the chest developing exercise. In all exercises I cannot impress upon you too strongly the necessity of standing properly.

Place the palms on the chest, with the tips of the middle fingers resting. Inhale slowly and, keeping the shoulders in the same position, draw the hands slowly outward and the elbows upward as in Figure II.

Then, holding them firmly, raise the elbows shoulder high, as in Figure III., and then force them back to the first position, exhaling as you do so. This will make you lame for the first few times, for it is bringing into play muscles which you have long allowed to lie useless.

Works Wonders

But every time you do it you are accomplishing wonders.

This exercise, like all the others, should be taken with much energy.

It does no good to exercise in a listless, half-hearted manner.

You should make your mind work as well as your muscles.

The hollow at the top of the shoulder is of much annoyance to women when they have a gown fitted or when they try to wear a decollete gown.

In the gown a skilful tailor or modiste can use padding to make up the deficiency, but this is impossible in the low-necked gown.

For Hollow Shoulders

Figure IV. shows how to fill up the hollows. Grasp the shoulders firmly, raise the arms and then slowly and with force pull the elbows down to the sides, still holding the shoulders, repeating for twenty times.

The present rage for short sleeves has made women's arms unusually prominent.

Many women have a fat, coarse upper arm, which spoils their appearance, for a woman's arm should be graceful, well-rounded and tapering.

Here is an exercise which will banish this; send it away, as we did the lump on the back of the neck.

Take the correct standing position, extend the arms shoulder high at each side, making a cross of your figure. Clench the fists hard and twist the arms forward, then backward, then forward, and repeat for at least ten times.

You will feel the muscles pull; you are literally churning your fat away.

Daily Exercise

And now just a few words about the daily exercise.

Always exercise in loose clothing and without corsets.

Always have fresh air in the room. Don't be afraid to open the windows.

Exercise regularly, every night and every morning. Fifteen minutes at a time is what I should advise, but if that is impossible, exercise at night. It is the high road to beauty.

These Simple Exercises, if followed faithfully, will quickly round out the unsightly hollows in the chest, neck and shoulders. They require no apparatus and are easily learned.

These pictures, from photographs posed especially for the BOSTON AMERICAN, show the arm movements recommended by Madame de Sabrisson for acquiring plump neck, chest and shoulders. The exercises are described in detail in the accompanying article.

Women Get Along Without Mirrors? Why It's Absurd!

By Beatrice Fairfax

THERE are a number of very indignant young women in Washington. They are employes of the Government Printing Office, and the great social machine has worked overtime in order to issue a command removing all mirrors from the building.

Do you wonder that the girls are indignant?

I have not the slightest doubt that the men who got together and solemnly issued that order twirled their mustaches complacently as they glanced in the elevator mirror on their way to luncheon.

The reason was that the girls wasted their time in primking. The girls claim that it was their own time and not that of the Government that was devoted to beautifying themselves.

However that may be, the fact remains that each floor there is to be but one mirror, and the girls must take turns at tittivating.

Very Shortsighted

IN my opinion the officials have shown themselves very shortsighted in their orders. The girls will waste far more time in waiting turns for a peep in the glass than they did when glasses were plenty.

Every girl likes to look neat and smart when she goes out to luncheon, and it stands to reason she cannot do so if she is obliged to put her hat on without a mirror.

The printing house officials should take into consideration the fact that the modern hat is fearfully and wonderfully constructed, and cannot be flung on any old way. It requires careful adjustment and an inch too much to the left or right may give it an air of rakishness quite appalling.

Now, a man does not need to look in the mirror when he puts his hat on. All he has to do is to look to see which is the front or back and put it on. As all sides of a man's hat look alike, I don't see why he should even bother about back or front.

Is Not Vanity

AFTER half a day spent in a downtown office the face is apt to be dirty and the hair more or less ruffled. No girl can arrange her hair properly without looking in the mirror while doing so. It is not vanity; it is merely the desire to look neat and presentable that brings her to the mirror.

The officials of the Government printing office are at small business when they take time to discuss the time wasted by the girls in mirror gazing.

All the orders in the world won't keep the girls away from the mirror when they think it necessary to be there, and the sooner the officials realize this the better.

Each girl will provide her own mirror if necessary and take surreptitious peeps when she feels like it.

Better stick to Government business, Mr. Printer, and leave the mirror question to the girls to settle.

Huge New Fashions in Hair Ornaments

TO say that the new hair ornaments are large in no short expression. The gigantic proportions they are now required to attain.

Huge ospreys, held by velvet or satin bows, are eminently to the fore. Feathery invariably repeating the color scheme of the toilette, while the osprey may accentuate the fancy, or offer a contrasting touch of white or cream.

Bandeaux of gold galloon concluding in a flowing bow are also considered a sequence of chic; while gold and silver tinsel leaves, disposed in flat fashion, offer a charming conclusion to a young girl's ball attire.

The fancy for gold and silver tinsel wanes not at all, and quite popular are sprays of gold and silver roses, mounted with natural green maidenhair fern or tose foliage, that offer themselves as an original and pretty finish to an evening corsage.

Pearl-studded bandeaux, passing under the chignon, still roses again tell a very fascinating tale, while those performed more after the floral trophies have never before had these offered in more tempting array.

A spray of white camellias, arranged with maidenhair fern, positively defies detection from the genuine bloom, and if exhibited at any representative horticultural show would inevitably carry off first prize for artificials.

Mauve orchids of equally exquisite character and with gold pink roses were equally lovely, while a spray of the white orchid, shown as a revelation of the perfection to which the art of flower-making has now attained.

Handy Things for Housewives to Know

TO sew on a button securely, place two is to grind stale pieces through it. This pins, crossways on a button, and then sew over them. Readers doing this will find their buttons stay on longer, and will not tear the material, as sometimes happens if there is any extra strain on the button.

To clean paint the best plan is to boil one pound of bran in a gallon of water for an hour, then wash the paint with this bran water; it will make it very bright and glossy. Old paintings brushes should be sponged with skim milk, or, if very dirty, water in which a large onion has been boiled. Oil paintings should be rubbed gently one way with a soft rag dipped in linseed oil, after removing every particle of dust. A decomposition of rock salt put in a wine decanter or bedroom water bottle, moistened with vinegar and well shaken, removes all stains.

It is very difficult to dry the inside of a mincing machine so as to prevent rusting. The best way to clean it, after using, will be found to collect all the grease, fat and skin from the small knives. Then wipe with a clean cloth.

Most people when making forcemeat use beef suet, but if beef or pork dripping be used instead of suet it will be found a very great improvement, and equally good and less cost.

Brown stains on baking dishes can be easily removed by dipping a piece of flannel in boiling water and rubbing it well into the stain.

Glass can be cut with a pair of ordinary shears, if glass and shears and hands are all kept under cold water.

When buying new linoleum, before hanging them up get a piece of strong white tape, and run it round the wide, near the top of them. You will find this will hold the curtains more in their proper position, and prevent the curtains from tearing. It does not take the curtains long more evenly, and last longer.

The Boston American Pattern

A Pretty Negligee

No. 5,806—There is always a demand for neat and tasteful negligees, and this one, with its simplicity in design, is suitable for any fabric, as well as attractive in model. "THE HERITAGE OF HATE"

CHAPTER XIX.

At the Club

Copyright, 1907, by American-Journal-Examiner

"GOOD evening, sir. I hope I see you well, sir?"

"Good evening, Bibby; I'm well, as usual, thank you," said Jack Heath replied with a blithe nod as he unbuttoned his long overcoat and revealed to the doorman at the New York Athletic Club the original splendor of his dress shirt front and the spotless whiteness of his necktie and high, stiff collar. "Is Mr. Gilbert Wynn upstairs?"

"Mr. Gilbert Wynn, sir? Yes, sir."

The cheerful Bibby, whose countenance was like a ripe apple, obsequiously assisted the young man to remove his coat. It was one of Bibby's chief duties to attend to the personal comfort of the members of the club.

"Mr. Wynn's in the reading room, sir," Jack Heath carelessly tossed away the end of his cigarette, gave a glance at his well-shaped hands, adjusted his sparkling wristbands, smoothed down a stray lock of his fair hair and stepped into the elevator.

Some six or seven men—all of them considerably older than himself—were seated in lounge chairs, each of them partly veiled in his own particular little blue cloud of tobacco smoke. Jack ran his eye round the group, taking in at a glance the splendidly composed, the most equally splendor of his dress shirt front and the spotless whiteness of his necktie and high, stiff collar. Eager for News

Gilbert Wynn appeared to be eager for news. He had scarcely got the paper in his hands before his dark eyes were travelling down the column that most concerned him. Whatever the object of his search, he came upon it quickly; for he crumpled up his paper and cast it contemptuously aside.

"Well?" queried Jack Heath, who had been closely watching him. "What's wrong?"

Gilbert Wynn turned new to the mantelpiece, took up his glass, drank off what remained in it, and answered disgustedly: "Blue Devil!"

The look of boyish glee came into Jack Heath's frank face. He held out his open palm in front of the elder man.

"Let's see," he said, with an affectation of worldly smartness, "it was 35 to 1 I laid, wasn't it?"

Wynn drew a handful of money from his pocket, picked out a bill and dropped it into Jack's hand.

"There you are, you lucky dog," he said. "You have me this time. I thought it was a dead certainty for Palmine. And so I would have been if the jockey hadn't been changed."

Jack turned to the waiter.

"Bring Mr. Wynn another brandy and soda," he said, on his own responsibility, "and another for me. What shall I order for you Harding?"

Mr. Ogilvy looked up with a start. "Thank you, Jack," he said absently, "I don't want anything, really. If you like, I'll have some bitters."

"Oh, but Jack, that you are about to go to Harvard," said Justice Jolly, and then added, with a sigh: "Ah, it's a wonderful advantage to a man to have a university training."

"You are not a varsity man yourself, Mr. Jolly, I think I observed," said Jack.

"No," answered Mr. Jolly, setting himself more comfortably in his chair and preparing to indulge in a pastime which the Harlem grammar school was the only one towards which he ever took kindly. "And, indeed, for me, too, I've done very well on its lowly footing. University, indeed! No, Jack, I had been working a good eight years before I got your present age."

"You must have seen a good many changes in upper New York since those days," remarked Jack Heath respectfully.

Mr. Jolly nodded and was about to reply, when Wynn broke in.

Clever Parries

"That reminds me!" The lawyer spoke in the most casual tone, yet with an abruptness that arrested the attention of all present. "Do you happen to remember, Mr. Jolly, if there was a man of the name of Artee living in that vicinity some years ago?"

"Artee?" Mr. Jolly repeated the name dubiously, scratching his gray hair. "Artee, do you say? Why, no, I don't know that I've heard the name before."

As he spoke his glance alighted on the face of Gilbert Wynn. He noticed that that elegant gentleman had slightly changed color, and that a certain nervous excitement had begun to agitate him.

Could Mr. Wynn's sudden cause for perturbation have been the mention of the name Artee? Justice Jolly turned reverted to his latest conversation with Sister Rachel, whose suspicions of Gilbert Wynn as the true murderer of Frank Heath had so greatly planned and perplexed him, and the first time he began to wonder whether those suspicions could have any foundation in fact.

"How long ago was it?" he asked Mr. Nudd, "and who was this man?"

The sailor-cook bent his sandy head in a way peculiar to him.

"The answer to both these questions is exactly what I want to discover," he replied. "It must have been at least seven or eighteen years ago—at all events, before Aubrey Heath came into possession, for I know of no mortality. Any way, I'm going to leave us already, Mr. Wynn."

Gilbert Wynn had turned his chair and was strolling toward the far end of the room, his cigar between his lips, but apparently listening to every word.

"No," he said carelessly, "I'm going to have a game of billiards. He touched Jack Heath on the shoulder. "Will you join me in a game, Jack?"

There was a general movement among the men. Mr. Nudd and some others rose to follow Wynn and young Heath into the billiard room.

Mr. Jolly glanced apprehensively at the clock.

"Why, it's past ten!" he exclaimed in almost tones of consternation. "Polly will be quite alarmed. Good night, all. Good night, Harding."

STEWED LIVER

HERE is a rule for stewed liver, a delicious breakfast or lunch dish: Parboil the liver in a saucepan over the fire until it is very tender, then put it on a large platter, and cut it in small square pieces. Pour off the water from saucepan, fill it with a quart of good milk or cream and thicken this with two tablespoons of flour. Add a little salt, piece of butter size of an egg, dash of pepper. Put the squares of liver into this sauce; let them warm up and serve in a deep dish at once.

ENGLISH SEED CAKE

CREAM one cent teacup of butter in a bowl, and add to it one cup of fine granulated sugar and one grain cinnamon or salt, and rub well together; after beating two eggs well, add them to the mixture. Now have a cup of good thick sour milk, for that is necessary for the success of this cake; put into it one-half of an even tea spoon of soda and stir well; then add to the bowl mixture. Have ready two cups of flour, sifted, with two teaspoons of baking powder and two full teaspoons of caraway seeds; sift into the bowl and stir all together for two or three minutes. Bake in loaf tin in a moderate oven forty-five minutes.

Newest Fancies in Belts and Buckles

BELTINGS are beautiful this year, and among the most attractive shown are those in the Scotch and Roman plaids. Plaid belts make a charming addition to a silk lingerie blouse when it is worn with a short-skirted suit. They are especially attractive with simple harness buckles, which are so much in vogue just now.

Elastic belts are in greater demand than ever this year. The narrower ones are in all colors—plain and plaided. They are stiff and embroidered in various designs. The soft elastic belts which crush into the buckle come only in black and white and are four or five inches wide.

The rage for gray belts is widespread this season, when gray is in high favor. Some of the stock models look like a most exquisite woven braid; some have a floral or conventional design embossed upon them.

A studded belt in one of these delicate gray shades is quite distinctive and a nice touch to a dainty gray luncheon gown.

Fancy belts for the Summer there are in plenty. One exquisite belt of this type is shown made in rose gold. The girl who wants something to harmonize with her new gown or outdoor wrap would do well to invest in one of these belts. She must be careful to have a buckle that is also in keeping, however.

Wide, soft belts, plaited into a slender long buckle at the back and finished with a buckle in front to correspond are to be popular this Summer. Coral and topaz buckles and amethyst and emerald set on leather belts in dull shades, which make the best of a background for the jewel shades in semi-precious stones.

Often the attractiveness of the belt depends upon the leather work rather than upon the buckle, and skins of different colors and different finish are combined with great success.

Patent is effective with dull-finished leathers, and some of the prettiest of the new belts are made of soft black patent leather, with cut-work designs over dull kid.

The best of these models are the compositions that are both pretty and wideas into a deep dip at the front. Another patent belt has a line of gold leather let in along the middle of the belt, with a narrow gold buckle. It is a most corresponding buckle in front.

Another fashion is a belt of one leather run through with narrow strips and laces of another leather.

Altogether the possessor of any pretty belting has the privilege of the greatest fun to work out her own belt to go in them, having accurately matched the exact nuance of the hose—a thing next to impossible to get right in buying.

ADVICE TO THE LOVELORN

By Beatrice Fairfax

FRIENDSHIP ONLY

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a young lady twenty-three years of age. About six years ago I met a young man six years my senior. He has never asked me to keep company, or never called on me steadily. Sometimes he calls every few weeks, and sometimes I don't see him for months at a time. He lives within an hour and a half's ride from my home and always treats me very nicely when out with him, but never speaks of any serious intention.

I have never cared particularly for him until this past year. Now, Miss Fairfax, do you think this young man cares for me, and don't you think he could call on me more often? And if not, I cannot help myself with others. Do you think I should stop seeing him, or is there any way to find out his intentions before doing so?

M. B.

ANSWER: I am afraid that the feeling for you is that of friendship only, and I think that if he loved you he would call more often and would not be content to see you he felt toward you. If you can it would be better to try to not think of him so much, as it will only make you suffer so more in the long run.

A DIFFICULT POSITION

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl eighteen years old, and have kept company with a young man twenty-five years of age for about eighteen months. Lately we had a little quarrel, and I left him one night angry. Since then I have seen him on the street, and I cannot tell you how I felt then, as he is the only man I ever loved, or ever will, and I know he passionately loved me. At least I thought I had loved him at one time. He has not written and apologies, which I did, but as this is now two weeks ago, and I have received no reply, I fear he means to end this little misunderstanding, make us both miserable. Now, Miss Fairfax, what would you do in this case? Do in this matter? My sister advises me to ignore him and not write, but I cannot. I will find that very hard to do, as I love him now more than ever.

L. M. G.

MY dear, you have done your share toward making reconciliation. Do not see that you can do anything more. Speak to him, but don't humble yourself too much. If he does not write to you in answer your letter, but perhaps by this time he has done so. I hope that things will come out all right.

TOMORROW'S BEST BARGAINS IN BOSTON'S BIG STORES

HENRY SIEGEL CO. offer 300 rolls of extra fine quality Japanese and Chinese straw matting, all new, fresh importations and some of this year's styles in patterns that are unusually low; here are some of them: Japanese matting from 18 cents to 30 cents per yard, Chinese matting $4.95 to $14.75 per roll of forty yards, enough to cover two reasonably sized rooms in one roll. Also a fine assortment of the well-known Negus weaves in dark, rich Oriental colors; the designs are copies of Oriental and Persian rugs, with fringe all around; these are 6 feet wide and sell at $2. Now the price to-morrow is $1.10. Their other lines of floor coverings, linoleum and oil cloth 25 cents per hair camels curtains in several plain effects, which will be sold to the readers of this paper for 45 cents per pair.

This includes free instruction when desired.

ARMED PAIR ARRESTED FOR MANY BREAKS

Found in Hub Pawnshop Disposing of Valuables Stolen in Worcester.

BOTH ARE YOUNG MEN

In the arrest of two armed men by Inspectors Rooney, Wolf and Conley, in North End pawnshop to-day, the police believe that they have captured the men responsible for the long series of breaks that have occurred in Worcester during the past two months.

The men arrested to-day are Joseph Joyce of No. 21 Liberty street, Worcester, and William Cronican of No. 3 Maple place, same city, each less than twenty-three years old.

They were arrested a few hours after the pawnshop of Samuel Goldsmith, at No. 247 Front street, Worcester, had been broken into and robbed.

Each of the men had a loaded revolver. They also had in their possession opera glasses, revolvers and watches which were identified as the property of Goldsmith.

They were trying to pawn this property when they were arrested.

The Boston police at once notified the Worcester authorities and the two men were in custody, and Inspector O'Day left Worcester for Boston to take the men back for arraignment.

Five hundred dollars' worth of property was stolen in Goldsmith's pawnshop.

SEEK MOTHER AS KIDNAPPER OF DAUGHTER

Little Girl Mysteriously Taken Away by Woman From Lowell School.

PARENTS WERE SEPARATED

LOWELL, May 15.—This city is aroused over the mysterious disappearance of little May Gertrude Foote, who was taken from her class in the Plain street school by a woman who was though to be the child's mother.

It is now believed that the girl, who is four years old, was spirited away from her father in this way. The woman who took the child gave no name.

The little girl, who makes her home with her grandmother at No. 6 Fryer street, was called for at the school by a woman during the morning session of the school. The woman said that the girl's father was at home and desired that she be excused. The teacher consented and the woman and the girl left the building hand in hand. That is the last trace of them.

The parents had not been living together of late because of family troubles, the husband living in West Boston, Me., and the wife, who has not heard from, being in Vermont. Divorce proceedings had recently been instituted.

KIDNAPPED AT SCHOOL BY WOMAN

Little Gertrude Foote, four years old, is supposed to have been stolen in Lowell by her mother, who has been separated from John W. Foote, her husband, and the child's father.

SHOE TRUST THREATENS TO LEAVE STATE

Head of Machinery Combine Says They'll Quit if Bill Displeases Them.

ACT PASSES THE SENATE

President Winslow, of the United Shoe Machinery Corporation, announced to-day that if he finds that the passage of the Shoe Machinery Bill interferes with the prosperity of the trust that corporation will move out of Massachusetts and do business in this State as a foreign corporation.

He said:

"The passage of the anti-Shoe Machinery Bill will not have any effect upon our prosperity, for when we find that we are losing business we will move out of the State, in which event we can conduct our business as other foreign corporations are doing in this State, what we are forbidden to do by the anti-Shoe Machinery Bill.

"We Will Get Out."

"If the State of Massachusetts does not want the United Shoe Machinery Corporation and this bill is found constitutional we will get out."

Senators Curley and Dixon of Boston, Mollen of Charlestown, Mahoney of Chicopee and Shaw of Manchester—four Democrats and one Republican—sat tongue-tied in the Senate late yesterday when the roll was called on the Shoe Machinery bill, and the bill was passed to be engrossed by a vote of 19 to 15.

The bill forbids the leasing of machinery on leases which bind the lessee not to use machinery of any other make. In Great Britain the Trust long ago made that concession—and eight others—to the British manufacturer.

How Vote on Bill Stood.

This was the roll call:

To pass the bill—Senators Bromberg, Buttrick, Cassidy, Cox, Gallond, Grimes, Hall, Hayes, Jenney, Leavitt, Linehan, Mitchell, Morse, Riley, Salter, Stevens, Toft, Vaher and Wheatley—19.

No—Senators Bullock, Chase, Clarke, Dean, Donovan, Faxon, Felker, Garfield, Johnson, Keith, Macleod, McMannmon, Piercy, Schuster and Williams—15.

LABOR TROUBLE AT M'KINLEY MONUMENT

CANTON, O., May 15.—There is trouble among the workmen of the McKinley monument. A New York firm of landscape gardeners, who have the contract for beautifying the grounds at the memorial, brought non-union workers to take the place of American laborers.

The American laborers have been receiving $2 a day for nine hours' work. The New York firm wanted them to work ten hours a day. The union refused, and the foreigners work ten hours a day for $1.75.

FELL OFF TRAIN, KILLED.

SALEM, May 15.—Harry O'Reilly, aged sixty, was instantly killed at the Boston & Maine station here last evening. He was riding on the front platform of the smoker and lost his balance, falling to the ground, killing A. A. Sands at Davies Junction.

MILITIA PROTECT NEGRO.

BRUNSWICK, Ga., May 15.—The militia has taken charge of the jail here to protect a negro, Lee Holmes, who is charged with

Women Avoid Operations

MISS ROSE MOORE

When a woman suffering from female trouble is told that an operation is necessary, it, of course, frightens her.

The very thought of the hospital, the operating table and the knife strikes terror to her heart.

It is quite true that these troubles may reach a stage where an operation is the only resource, but a great many women have been cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound after an operation has been decided upon as the only cure. The strongest and most grateful statements possible to make come from women who by taking made from native roots and herbs, have escaped serious operations, as evidenced by Miss Rose Moore's case, of 307 W. 36th St., N.Y. She writes:—

Dear Mrs. Pinkham:—"Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has cured me of the very worst form of female trouble and I wish to express to you my deepest gratitude. I suffered intensely for two years so that I was unable to attend to my duties and was a burden to my family. I doctored and doctored with only temporary relief and constantly objected to an operation which I was advised to undergo. I decided to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound; it cured me of the terrible trouble and I am now in better health than I have been for many years."

This and other such cases should encourage every woman to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound before she submits to an operation.

Mrs. Pinkham's Standing Invitation to Women

Women suffering from any form of female weakness are invited to promptly communicate with Mrs. Pinkham at Lynn, Mass. From the symptoms given, the trouble may be located and the quickest and surest way of recovery advised.

COL. HUGHES SHAKES FIST AT PRESIDENT

Tennessee Postmaster Ousted Without Hearing Reads Riot Act to Roosevelt.

By Boston American Leased Wire.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Colonel Arch M. Hughes of Columbia, Tenn., a soldier and a politician of the old school, one of the 306 who voted for Grant at Chicago in 1880, went to the White House yesterday and read the riot act to President Roosevelt as few men have ever dared to read it. He read it also to Assistant Postmaster-General Hitchcock, and when he strolled back to the South last night he left two pairs of tingling ears behind him.

Colonel Hughes is postmaster at Columbia, or was until yesterday, when he was ousted to make room for a man sworn to oppose Representative Brownlow, the only Republican Congressman from Tennessee, whose extermination is an administration desire.

It was about his removal that Col. Hughes went to the White House with his fighting clothes on. President Roosevelt received him in the presence of several other callers, but that did not slash Col. Hughes. He stated his case without any attempt at conciliation and wound up with the compliment by a fist shaken in the direction of the President's head:

"You would not dismiss a messenger from the White House without a hearing, yet you dismiss me without one on the ex parte statement on a man who is intent on getting my place.

"There is one thing I want to say to you: I had two grandfathers at King's Mountain, both of whom were Whigs. My maternal grandfather commanded old Jackson's bodyguard at Talladega and the Horseshoe. I don't come from the stock that will submit to this kind of treatment without a fight.

"Good; very good," said the President.

Colonel Hughes then went down to see Assistant Postmaster-General Hitchcock, who has been down South recently, bringing that section into line for Mr. Roosevelt.

"I want to say one word to you, Mr. Hitchcock," said Colonel Hughes. "You think you know something about politics. I was voting for Grant at Chicago when you were in short dresses, yet you think you can teach me something about politics in Tennessee. I'm going back there to be elected delegate to the National Convention, and as soon as I'm elected I'm sending back here to shake my finger in your face and ask you to take a few kindergarten lessons before you go into the South again."

MOSES GODDARD IS DEAD AFTER SHORT ILLNESS

Born in Providence, He Had Always Been One of City's Leaders in Charitable Work.

PROVIDENCE, R. I., May 15.—Moses Brown Ives Goddard, a member of the famous firm of Brown & Ives, which was established in the eighteenth century, died at his home on Brown street yesterday afternoon.

Mr. Goddard had been ill only about ten days. He was seventy-six years old, and for the last few years has not been actively engaged in business. He has always been a great traveller, rarely missing spending a part of each year abroad. While here he divided his time between his city home, at the corner of Brown and Benevolent streets, and his country estate at Potowomut Neck.

Goddard's Brother.

Mr. Goddard leaves a widow but no children. His living brothers are Colonel William Goddard, the head of the firm of Brown & Ives, and Colonel Robert H. I. Goddard. His sister, Mrs. Thomas P. Shepard, lives on Prospect street.

Moses B. I. Goddard was born in Providence April 21, 1831. He was the son of Professor William Giles Goddard, for many years a distinguished professor in Brown University, and of Charlotte Ives. His father died in 1846. From 1850 to 1853 he was a student at Brown, but he did not graduate.

Railroad President.

He was the president of the Providence & Worcester Railroad Company, and treasurer of the Butler Hospital. He was ever a patron of music. He journeyed to Bayreuth repeatedly and planned his continental trips so as best to enjoy grand opera.

He was a member of the Hope Club and of the Rhode Island Historical Society and a liberal contributor to local charitable, educational and benevolent institutions.

Mr. Goddard never sought public prominence of any sort. His artistic pleasures he found in his home, in travel and in music. For a few months he has crossed the Atlantic as often as he. Two trips in a year were not unusual for him.

MANCHESTERS DELAY RETURN

By Boston American Leased Wire.

NEW YORK, May 15.—Just before the sailing today of the Majestic the valet of the Duke of Manchester appeared on the dock and demanded that the baggage of the Duke and Duchess, also that of her father, Eugene Zimmerman, be put back on the pier.

The excuse given was that the Duke had suffered a severe attack of neuralgia and could not sail on that account. However, it was understood from other sources that the Duke and Duchess remained on the side to attend a meeting of the Smith heirs.

100 MACHINISTS GO ON STRIKE

PROVIDENCE, May 15.—As the result of the decision of the Standard Machinery Company's management not to grant the demands for a nine-hour day or an advance in wages about 100 machinists employed in the company's plant at No. 7 Beverly street, this city, struck yesterday afternoon.

According to the report of Secretary Thomas L. Wilson of the Machinists' Union, only two men, old employes, remained in the shop, and the union did not ask that these two quit work.

BLACK, ITCHING SPOTS ON FACE

Physicians Called It Eczema in Worst Form — Treated Disease for a Year but Could Not Cure It —Patient Became Despondent — Suffering Promptly Allayed and

DREADFUL DISEASE CURED BY CUTICURA

"About four years ago I was afflicted with black splotches all over my face and a few covering my body, which produced a most itching irritation, and which caused me a great deal of annoyance and suffering. So much did it extend that I was forced to call in two of the leading physicians of our town. After a thorough examination of the dreaded complaint they announced it to be skin eczema in its worst form. They treated me for the same for the length of one year, but the treatment did me no good. Finally I became despondent and decided to discontinue their services. Shortly afterwards, my husband in reading a copy of a weekly New York paper, saw an advertisement of the Cuticura Remedies. He purchased the entire outfit, and after using the contents of the first bottle of Cuticura Resolvent in connection with the Cuticura Soap and Ointment, the breaking out entirely stopped. I continued the use of the Cuticura Remedies for six months, and after that every splotch was entirely gone and the affected parts were left as clear as ever. I have not had a symptom of the eczema since, which was three years ago. The Cuticura Remedies not only cured me of that dreadful disease, eczema, but of other complicated troubles as well, and I have seen instances of others being cured of the same disease by the Cuticura Remedies, and I don't hesitate in saying that Cuticura Resolvent is the best blood purifier that the world has ever known. Mrs. Lizzie E. Sledge, 340 Jones Ave., Selma, Ala., Oct. 28, 1905."

60 IN PERIL AS ENGINEER DIES

By Boston American Leased Wire.

PHILADELPHIA, May 15.—The lives of more than sixty passengers, most of them residents in the fashionable suburbs along the main line of the Pennsylvania, were imperilled last night when William Armstrong, engineer of a local train, died with his hand on the locomotive's throttle.

The train left Broad street at 7.45 o'clock and reached Ardmore at 8.08. Armstrong then gave no evidence of illness. As the train neared Haverford the fireman and crew noticed that there was no slow down for a stop.

Instead, the train dashed through at a rate a minute. The firemen climbed into the cab and found Armstrong huddled down in his seat with his hand on the wide-open throttle, and averted the danger of a rear end collision with the train ahead.

MEDAL TO MISS CONWAY FRIDAY

Miss Katherine Eleanor Conway, the well-known poet, publicist and editor of the Boston Pilot, is to be presented with Laetare medal of the University of Notre Dame, Indiana, at Boston College, Friday, evening, at 8 o'clock. Each year the university gives a medal to the most devout member of the Catholic laiety for eminent services rendered in the interest of religion, education and philanthropy. The name of the recipient is always announced on Laetare Sunday.

Appropriate exercises are planned for Friday night when the medal is presented, and many clergy and prominent Catholic laymen who have previously received medals are. Thomas B. Fitzpatrick, Benjamin Bunker Cockran, New York; Attorney General C. J. Bonaparte and Patrick Donahue.

Special to the Boston American.

CLEVELAND, May 15.—The three scout men in Cleveland last night were Manager Bob Unglaub, Catcher Criger and Pitcher Tannehill. The peace of mind of the two former was disturbed by the thought that their return to the fighting zoning of Tuesday's contest between the Pilgrims and the Naps had practically given the game to the home team, 5 to 4, while Jesse was perturbed by the fact that the Larrupers, to whom he has always been a terror, should have beaten him. He swears revenge and will ask Manager Unglaub for one more chance against Lajoie's fists. This opportunity likely will be offered about Friday when his opponent in all probability will be Otto Hess, Cleveland's only Southpaw.

These wild rumors put Unglaub and Criger upset Tannehill and took all the starch out of him and the latter wonder is that the Naps were able to hit him hard toward the close of the battle. But the Bostonians are glad that they are through with Jesse, who by defeating them yesterday annexed his seventh straight victory. He is the only winning pitcher Cleveland has. Lidebrandt has been doing pretty good work; Hess is erratic as ever; Rhoades has been hit hard right along and Bernhard hasn't arrived yet; Moore has weather the last two days has been ideal for baseball. Young and probably Lidebrandt had a fair chance. The Naps have hard

ABBATICCHIO, PIRATE INFIELDER

Here is a picture of Abbaticchio, the clever second baseman of the Pirates. "Batty" used to play shortstop for the Boston Nationals, but retired for the hotel business. Last Winter the Pirates began to negotiate with "Batty" to play on their team, and he consented to return to the game, provided they could get his release from the Hub. "Batty" owns a hotel just outside of Pittsburg, and he figured if he played in Smoketown he could attend to his business half the time. When they got "Batty's" word that he would play again, the Pirates got Boston to let them have him for three players, Beaumont, Ritchey and Flaherty, making one of the biggest trades for one man on record. "Batty" while in this city never struck anyone as a world beater, although he was considered a first-class player, but his fielding at times was rather bad. It is surprising that the Pirates let a man of Ritchey's calibre get away, along with two other players, but Manager Clarke says that Ritchey refused to play in Pittsburg any more, and the other two men were surplus players.

non games not through pitching, but by hard swatting.

So with Joss out of the way the visitors are figuring on doing some business that the Naps will not relish. If they can time to hit the way they did yesterday they will come mighty near to taking the rest of the games of the series.

The Pilgrims spent last night at the Summer theatre or strolling the streets. It was warm, like Spring, and they found it somewhat uncomfortable in the hotel. Manager Unglaub, on his team mates' behalf, spent most of his time in getting outside of his dish after dish of ice cream. Even their statements, the visible supply of the frozen stuff was considerably diminished through his efforts.

The local weather forecaster last night predicted showers for this afternoon. The Bernhard hasn't arrived yet; Moore has weather the last two days has been ideal for baseball. Young and probably Lidebrandt had a fair chance. The Naps have hard Umpires—Emslie and Carpenter.

Fred Clarke, manager of the Pirates, says there is nothing to the present series with the Doves but three straight victories for his team. The Pittsburgers are in a good way toward carrying out the assertion of their leader, as they have already captured two games by unstinted use of their bats.

"I don't think there is anything to it but three straight in this city," declared Clarke. "Boston has always proved an easy proposition for us for some reason or another, and I guess we have got them a going this season also."

Manager Tenney, however, says that the Pirates are not going to have things as easy as they look for in the remaining games, and he is of the opinion that his men will take the last battle.

Pat Flaherty, who was expected to twirl yesterday's game, probably will be next to the rubber, and he will work his head off to try to beat his former team-mates. Sam Leever, the schoolmaster, will most likely deliver the elusive leather for the Smoketowners.

In a very ragged game yesterday the Pirates won to the tune of 6 to 3. The Tenney ites outbatted their rivals, but in every other department they were made to look like bush leaguers alongside of the crafty Pirates.

The visitors cornered the game at the start by scoring five runs on three hits off Peiffer, a base on balls, a man hit and Tenney's rank nouf.

The big lead secured by the visitors in the opening couldn't be overcome by the locals, and, although they batted the Wilds, their ex-teammate, rather hard, they couldn't bunch their hits.

STEAMERS WILL RACE AT READVILLE MAY 30

BY J. C. KERRISON.

There will be at least two steamers in the big events at Readville on Memorial Day next. Frank Durbin, the man who has done such good work on the road and track and who has driven in the majority of tournaments at Ormond, Fla., has entered two steamers, one for each event. Stanley will therefore be the only steam man represented in the contest. The idea that steamers cannot carry sufficient water and gasoline to cover the two distances, namely fifty and one hundred miles, will, therefore, either be proved or disproved. It is believed that the racebout class these steamers can carry more than enough water and fuel to cover the fifty miles. They have already proven their ability to do so at Ormond a year ago a regular stock steamer went the full distance of one hundred miles in grand good style. It is a matter of great satisfaction to all interested in the contests to learn that both styles of machines will be represented. The results of the contest, no matter what they may be, will go a long way towards settling the much mooted question relative to the staying qualities of both styles of craft.

The entries for the races do not close until May 24, and by that time it is believed that the field will be about the largest that has ever been entered for similar contests.

It looks very much as if there would not be any Vanderbilt Cup race this year, as a meeting of the directors of the Long Island Motor Parkway Mr. W. K. Vanderbilt, Jr., announced that after a conference with his engineers it had been found impossible to complete the parkway in time for the race this Fall.

There will be a meeting of the Vanderbilt Cup Committee and the A. A. A. Racing Board to-day, when some formal action will be taken on the matter of a race this Fall.

Those who are in a position to know say that neither Mr. Vanderbilt nor the Cup Committee are in favor of holding a race over the public highways of Nassau or Suffolk County unless some way can be found to call out the militia to guard the course or the local policing will assume the responsibility of policing the route and guarantee the association against any suit for damages.

HANLON SAFE IN MAKING BIG OFFER

Manager Hanlon made the bold statement that he would give up every cent of his salary for the season of 1907 to see the Reds win the pennant. This means that he would be willing to part with the extremely smart sum of $12,000 if he could load the present aggregation of Reds home in front of seven other clubs.

"It may look like a rich proposition to hang up that amount of money for a team that is not doped to finish any higher than the Reds. Handing out a bankroll is a heavy conversation, "but I'd be willing to part with every cent that is coming to me this year to see them land the flag—and the thing is not impossible by a great deal.

"The first year we won the flag with the Baltimore team we were not any better thought of than are the Reds this year. No one picked us to finish higher than sixth place—and yet we went in and captured the flag in handy style. I'm not claiming the flag or any other position for the Reds this year. But I do say that we have a smarter team than we are given credit for, and I'd willingly work all season for the glory if we can bring the bunting home to Cincinnati. We're going to get better right along, and there's no telling how much speed we will have up by the Fourth of July, for when that we will just be about striking our right gait."

Those who are in a position to know say that neither Mr. Vanderbilt nor the Cup Committee are in favor of holding a race over the public highways of Nassau or Suffolk County unless some way can be found to call out the militia to guard the course or the local policing will assume the responsibility of policing the route and guarantee the association against any suit for damages.

JACK TAYLOR SAYS GRIFF WAS KING OF TWIRLERS

CINCINNATI, May 15.—Pitchers work too hard when in the box nowadays," said Jack Taylor of the Cubs' pitching staff. "I don't mean they think too much, but they put too much physical energy behind their pitching. That is what wears so many of them out after only a few years of big league work.

"The pitcher who has an easy delivery and who depends on control and his head lasts twice as long as the one that is always twisting himself out of shape and then hurling his whole strength and weight into every ball he throws.

"There are some good examples of the art of pitching easily that demonstrate my theory. Take Cy Young of the Boston American team, or Charlie Nichols when he was in his prime, or Clark Griffith, once with the Cubs and now manager of the New York American team.

"To my mind Clark Griffith was the greatest pitcher I ever saw; and I admired him so much that I patterned my style after him as much as possible. Griffith liked it best when he was in the hole—men on bases and two balls to the batter. Then he would show all his ability to outguess the batter and give him exactly what he didn't want in the place he didn't want it was marvelous to me. And he did all this with no apparent exertion. Some people think Griffith had no speed, because he wasn't always tying himself up in knots and kicking behind the catcher down. I know 'Griff' had plenty of speed when he wanted to use it, but he didn't need it, and that is why he lasted so long as he did. I believe right now that Clark Griffith could go in and with a bit of work could pitch as good ball as any man on the staff, and possibly better.

"What a manager I think Griffith is prone to expect too much from his pitchers. He has them according to their build. If the other pitchers haven't the head and control he possessed. He knows what he used to do in a pinch—how he liked to have the bases full and two strikes and a batter when the game was a tie and a runner at third, and still curve over a corner for a batter thought sure he would trust to nothing but a straight fast ball. Because 'Griff' could do this kind of a thing is no reason why a great pitcher, but there are few who can duplicate him. I have heard kicks that he yanks a man out too quickly. He expects them to do what he used to do and they can't do it."

LUCKY SHIFT IN PLANS SAVES GATCOMB HORSES FROM WRECK

BY EDWARD E. COGSWELL.

All of the ten horses, including Audubon Boy, 1:59¼, Phalia, 2:04¾, and Grace Bond, 2:09½, in the express car of James Gatcomb, en route from Los Angeles, Cal., to Readville race track, would have been in a disastrous wreck except for a fortunate shift in plans by taking a layoff of one day in Albuquerque N. M., as only a few miles this side of that city the train to which they had been attached was piled into the ditch through the spreading of the rails.

However, the string is now safely quartered at Readville, and all in perfect health to begin their preparation for the coming campaign for the Grand Circuit.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Gatcomb look and feel fine after their winter in California, but from their statements it is easily to be seen that they will not soon repeat their experience of Wintering on the Pacific coast. For five months it rained steadily in Los Angeles, and it was through the bad weather that all of the exhibitions stopped out for Audubon Boy out there were cancelled.

To Start at Detroit Meet.

In speaking of his arrangements for the year, Mr. Gatcomb said to-day that he likely would make his initial start at the Detroit meeting and then follow the chain of Grand Circuit meetings right through to the Lexington.

Audubon Boy he will enter and race in all of the free-for-alls that are made best two heats in three. Not only does Mr. Gatcomb believe that two in three is best enough for racing, but he does not intend taking a chance of his great stallion breaking down in three-in-five events. As is well known, he has a leg that was fired and blistered three seasons ago, and it will be strain enough in condition him to race at the extreme speed he will be obliged to in the shorter races.

Every effort will be made to give him the world's race record, now held by Star Pointer in 2:00¾. Should he remain sound this appears a certainty, as last season he could handily pace miles in two minutes, and in one instance he stepped the last half in fifty-eight seconds.

Before leaving the Coast, Audubon Boy was bred to twelve mares, and they were some of the best bred ones in that section. He has the same number slated to him from New England that will be attended to before the racing season begins.

Never Sired a Pacer.

Five of his get are in Mr. Gatcomb's stable, four being trotters; in fact, he has never sired a pacer from a trotting bred mare. One, a three-year-old, worked an eighth at Los Angeles in 18 seconds.

None of the aged horses have been asked to show fast miles this year. Grace Bond and Phalia have been around in 2:22, while Audubon Boy's best trip has been in 2:26, but he has had nearly 200 slow miles this Spring, to stay him up for faster work later on.

Before leaving Los Angeles Mr. Gatcomb saw a pacer go a mile in 2:07 and a trotter in 2:10, but that is not his idea of early training.

While there were 150 horses in training at the Los Angeles track, yet the harness horses are not so highly thought of on the coast as might be imagined. Everybody out there is speculating in corner lots, while the running horses have the big hold on the general public.

GROWTH OF DRIVING CLUBS IN COUNTRY REMARKABLE

One intimacy with the speedway and mattines there is no more ardent devotee of the sport than he is proved by the former prominent member of the Dorchester Driving Club, J. N. Terry, who, after having got gelding Checkers, but sold him when he removed to New Jersey to Walter Agg, supporting that doing business in New York would entirely separate him from the sport he so much admired.

His change of residence failed to separate him from the sport, however, for in Dorchester and married one of the fair daughters of that place, and soon after organized a driving club in Cranford, N. J., known as New Fair Grounds, equipped with fifty charter members, and a modern half-mile track to hold their weekly matinees over.

"The action of Mr. Terry only shows how the wonderful growth of the driving clubs the country over has been attained," said Secretary W. E. Herbert of the Dorchesters.

"When the Dorchesters were organized eight years ago there was no other driving club in New England which knew a certainty that the Lynn, Metropolitan and Boston Gentlemen's Driving Clubs were the direct result of the success of the Dorchester Club, as well as numerous other organizations of the kind throughout New England. In many instances the driving horse clubs were established by copying the ones ruling the Dorchesters. Hardly a month passes except we hear of a club from some newly formed driving club requesting us to mail them a set of our by laws."

PERRELLI WINS OVER JIM SMART

In a rough and tumble catch-as-catch-can wrestling bout at the Columbia Theatre, John Perrelli, the shifty Italian, defeated Jim Smart, the English wrestler, in two straight falls, the first in 16 minutes and 20 seconds, and the second in 17 minutes and 10 seconds.

When the Italian was declared the winner, Smart told the audience that he could beat Perrelli at Graeco Romns, and a match was hastily made for $10 a side, and Perrelli again proved victor. The same men will meet again at the Graeco-Roman style, May 28.

CLAY FANS 21 HARVARD MEN

Although Max Clay, the star pitcher of the Stone School nine, had twenty-one strikeouts to his credit, his team lost to Harvard freshmen, in a twelve-inning game at Cambridge, by a score of 4 to 3. This makes forty-one strikeouts in two days by Clay, twenty of the Pomfret baseball being fooled by him on Monday, which is an unequaled schoolboy record.

PIANOS AND ORGANS.

A Real, Genuine Bargain

SALE OF PIANOS

We intended to give a detailed statement on each of the below bargains, but there has been so many good things said about these pianos by other advertisers and also by their makers that we "cut it short" and simply say that we have sized off the price so that there is no profit in any of them for us, and we can truthfully say that if we sell some of them at the prices quoted that we will suffer a loss. There always comes a time in a Big Piano House like ours when we must sell to clean up the establishment of bargains. This week is the out-price time here, and if you are looking for a good piano at your own price come early—Next week will be too late on this lot. Write us if you cannot call and we will tell you all about other bargains besides.

Here Is a Big Question

This Country Could Give Eighty Million Answers

Mr. Redmond Landor of Roxbury asks a question that would probably be answered in a different way by every man, woman and child reading this newspaper.

Here is his question:

"Will you kindly explain, so that the average reader may understand, the best answer to the following question:

"What is happiness; how can it be obtained; what are the best means of keeping it after it is caught?"

The question, "What is happiness, and how can I find it and keep it?" has been asked ever since men came on this earth. And before men came, it was asked by monkeys in their dull way, also by hyenas, elephants and oysters.

The question seems to have worried Lucifer while he was still attending to his own business and keeping out of trouble in heaven.

The question was certainly put to Adam by Eve, the moment she had come into consciousness, straightened out her hair, and looked at herself in the brook. Adam probably asked the question of the stars, or of the slimy snake, while he was waiting for Eve to be created.

All men and women on the earth, white, black, yellow, old and young, still have the same question in their minds.

Human beings will be asking that same question a million years from now.

Forever the question will be asked, and it will never be settled.

FOR THAT QUESTION AND THE ATTEMPT TO ANSWER IT MAKE UP ALL THERE IS OF LIFE, OF EFFORT AND OF WORK ON THE EARTH.

The desire for happiness and the effort to get it has given to men all that they possess.

They came here on earth naked, wild, ignorant. The power of the desire for happiness has clothed them, educated them, taught them the sciences and the arts, given us in place of savagery the semi-civilization that we enjoy.

We shall not try to answer the question definitely, but shall give you the answers of wise thinkers.

Three women will write answers for you—Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who stands tiptoe on Mount Olympus, with her head up among the stars discussing philosophy and the single tax; by Beatrice Fairfax, who can turn the human heart inside out and tell what's the matter with it, and by Dorothy Dix, who has the best satirical woman's mind in this country, and could be a world-famous writer if she would only take herself seriously.

Meanwhile here are suggestions, showing how various the idea of happiness is.

A cat is happy when she sees a mouse; a woman is not.

A miser is happy when he counts his money and locks it up. His son is happy when he scatters it.

Generally speaking, a woman is happy when admired, and a man when envied.

A Kaffir, at home, finds happiness squatted beside the body of a dead, decaying hippopotamus. His cousin, once removed in America, finds the same happiness in a bright red necktie, a large glass diamond, and tight shoes.

Darwin found happiness for thirty years in the study of earthworms, and Rockefeller for a longer time in the study of dollars.

Childhood finds happiness in noise and rough play. The happiness of old age is in quiet and in contemplating the happiness of others.

Of this you may be sure:

THE NORMAL MAN FINDS HAPPINESS ONLY IN DOING THE BEST THAT HE CAN.

Successful work of the most useful possible kind, ACTUAL USEFULNESS TO OTHER HUMAN BEINGS—that is probably as good a definition of happiness as any.

What do you think?

Don't Blame the Judges

The Men Responsible for Injunctions Are the Workingmen Who Elect Corporation Agents to Make Their Laws for Them.

There appeared in this newspaper, yesterday, a communication from Mr. W. C. Rose of Ashland, Mass., in which he asked:

Can you point out in the constitution of Massachusetts the clause conferring explicitly or implicitly upon any court the power to issue any such injunction as has been issued in the case of the teamsters' strike? And can you point out, in a way to make it clear to the ordinary mind, any essential distinction between such an injunction and the edict of a despot? The injunction, as reported in the papers, certainly abridges the freedom of speech, and the law is expressly prohibited from abridging the freedom of speech. Have we a government of laws or a government of judges?

A newspaper in this State has to be very careful in what it says about judges.

The lawyers sitting upon the bench have a disagreeable way of punishing for contempt of court men who venture to criticise their actions.

Moreover, the AMERICAN believes that Judge Loring acted with greater fairness in issuing this injunction than has been shown by many other judges in the State in the past. Much more sweeping injunctions have been issued and they have come much more perilously near abridging the right of free speech.

Our correspondent should not criticise the judges. If they were elected by the people there might be fewer corporation lawyers among them and they might not be quite so quick to grant injunctions against labor unions, but the real fault is not with the judges. THE FAULT IS WITH THE WAGE EARNERS THEMSELVES.

So long as the workingmen continue to elect to the Legislature politicians whose campaigns are financed by the corrupt corporations so long they will have laws which permit the issuing of injunctions like the one that has recently been issued in the teamsters' strike in Boston.

For instance, in the present Legislature most of the Republican members owe their nomination and election, directly or indirectly, to the Republican machine, which obtains more than two hundred thousand dollars annually from the Massachusetts trusts and public service corporations.

The hold of these corporations on the Republican party is shown by the fact that the Speaker of the House is the printer for the Shoe Machinery Trust; that the next candidate for Governor is himself a trust owner and an employer of non-union and child labor; and that the most active and forceful member of the State organization, aside from Senator Lodge himself, is J. Otis Wardwell, a notorious corporation lobbyist. The list of corporation agents in the Legislature is almost as long as the list of committee chairmen.

In the Democratic minority we have such men as Senator Thomas F. Curley, who once served a jail sentence for civil service fraud, and J. J. Mellen, both of whom take their orders from Mayor Fitzgerald, who in turn takes his orders and raises campaign funds from the Boston Elevated Railway.

This Legislature, owned body and soul by the corporations, sidetracked without a vote the picketing and the anti-injunction bills, which would have rendered impossible such an injunction as the one to which Mr. Rose objects. Then it voted down the Public Opinion bill, which would have permitted the people to express their opinions of those bills.

The working men who elect the Legislature are to blame for the injunctions that are issued against themselves. When they take matters into their own hands and refuse to vote the ticket of any party that is financed by the Trusts or managed by Trust agents, THEN—and not till then—will they do away with government by corporation lawyers.

Prof. Frank Parsons--the Man and Teacher

By Meyer Bloomfield

THE good news that Professor Frank Parsons will be able in a few days to leave the Homeopathic Hospital, where for weeks his precious life has been hanging in the balance after an operation unique in surgical history, will bring cheer to the many whose teacher and inspiration he has been for nearly a quarter of a century.

All his life Professor Parsons has been a teacher of the people. Gifted with a fine mind, a tireless patience for facts, a passion for thoroughness and zest for hard work, coupled with a most winning personality, he was naturally destined to be a teacher on a broad scale, a man who leads as well as informs.

Book knowledge as such appeals but little to Professor Parsons. Life knowledge is what interests him, the facts in science, art, nature and the world of human nature which make for more life, more justice, more manhood, womanhood and childhood.

Through all his activities, in his books, lectures and his personal relations there runs a golden thread of human sympathy. Even in the midst of strenuous economic controversies—and Professor Parsons has fought many an economic battle—his mellowness of heart, his willingness to be shown the other side, has always impressed those who came near him. Professor Parsons always fights in the open.

He is dangerous only to wrongdoers. But his indignation is not personal; he is fair. He is interested in bringing about only what is best to his mind, a just society. His unsparing critical studies of municipal conditions are inspired by the wish to have real democracy practiced as a living faith.

It is known that Professor Parsons was a member of the distinguished National Civic Federation Commission which went abroad last year to study the problem of municipal ownership in European cities. Among the party were several well-known captains of industry. Naturally at the outset they thought that Professor Parsons would probably be hostile in his attitude, or rather much prejudiced. A few months of close observation of the man proved him to be a most open-minded, receptive, fair-dealing member.

A prominent railroad official who was a member of the commission said, on his return: "Professor Parsons comes back the most popular and respected man in our party."

It is to the North End that the recovery of Professor Parsons's health will mean most. To the Breadwinners' College of the Civic Service House he has freely, beautifully contributed his wealth of mind and heart.

Coming to Salem street night after night, almost spent from a long day's labor, he gave himself to all who sought his counsel, his judgment and his confidence. To him scores of manly and womanly students turned after a day in factory or store to get a glimpse of the world of thought and aspiration, to taste the joy of a liberal outlook upon life. He has been their best friend.

It is a prayer all good men and women will send up, that Professor Frank Parsons be spared for many years to humankind whose inspired worker and beloved teacher he has always been.

Little Editorials from the People

NEW POLITICAL PARTIES.

Editor BOSTON AMERICAN:

One of the most hopeful signs of the times is the eagerness of men to fly to any political party which can make some show of gain.

The significant fact in this is that the old parties hold many who would be glad to desert them on any pretext.

Within these old parties there are tens of thousands who would take a holiday to attend the funeral of either or both these old parties.

What a political party has to depend for success upon bluster and brass bands and gilt regalia it has fallen down to the lingering estate and must play with the children which compose its strength.

When it is held together by the "cohesive power of public plunder" it is made of human swine who sell their franchise for a bit of oregano or a drink of beer.

No mighty navy, no swelling army can protect us from the dangers arising from the dominance of such parties.

Our only protection is to be found in a public conscience which is unbiasable and unafraid. Debauch the public conscience in America and the crack o' doom will not be long for us.

Already we find that dogs at work in our politics. We make a food profession of our love for law, but we really treat it as a joke, an evasion, a disguise and a machine by which are joined the police and the police, much like a centrifugal churn by which the cream and the sky blue milk are separated.

Surely if some Moses would arise to lead the Americans out from this Egypt of political pestilence, his name would shine with a lustre greater than that of any politician placed in power by the well greased machinery of partisan enterprise.

MR. E. Z. MARK GIVES EXPERT ADVICE

By the American-Journal-Examiner

1. STRANGER—Mr. Mark, I'm from the country and I'd like some advice. A slick looking chap I met on the train offered to sell me these government bonds for five hundred dollars. He says they're worth a thousand.

E. Z. MARK—Most likely it's a bunco game. Just let me look at them.

2. E. Z. MARK—Well, I must say they're pretty good imitations. If it wasn't for the fact that he's selling them so cheap I'd almost think they were genuine. I don't wonder that you were deceived, but they can't fool me.

3. E. Z. MARK—Just to make sure, I'll examine these documents under the magnifying glass. Ah, yes! Now I can see very plainly that they are not genuine. It's lucky you came to me for advice.

STRANGER—Thank you, Mr. Mark. It was very good of you to go to all this trouble. I shall not forget your kindness. Good day, sir.

4. E. Z. MARK.—Well, that fellow certainly came to the right place for advice when he consulted me. It was worth a great deal to him. He will—Wase? Where's my watch? My pin? My pocketbook? Ye gods! Robbed again.
